Launch Team Certifies 2 Apollo 14 Craft

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The launch team makes final adjustments today to the two Apollo 14 spaceships, certifying them for flight to the moon Sunday.

Throughout the day, the crew, working at the 320-foot level of the launch support tower, planned to remove test equipment, replace panels and check systems to make certain the command ship Kitty Hawk and the lunar module Antares are flight ready.

This operation, known as a mechanical buildup, followed two days in which propellants and pressurization gases were loaded aboard the two vehicles. Included was installation of a complex fiberglass cover to protect the command ship during the Saturn 5 rocket's upward thrust through the atmosphere. It is discarded early in flight.

Before replacing panels around the base of Antares, workmen loaded aboard a two-wheel cart, folded to fit in a small space.

Astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell are to pull this rickshaw-like cart about as they explore the lunar surface. The moon buggy has containers for everything from cameras and film magazines to shovel, scoop and core tubes and 35 numbered bags into which samples are to be placed.

While astronaut Stuart A. Roosa orbits alone in Kitty Hawk, Shepard and Mitchell are to spend 3 1/2 hours on the moon, exploring the ancient Fra Mauro highlands in a search for rocks that might hold clues to the origin of the moon.

The mechanical buildup of the spaceships was part of the countdown, which continued to progress smoothly toward the planned liftoff at 3:23 p.m. EST Sunday.

Shepard, Mitchell and Roosa planned several hours practice today in the command and lunar module simulators, concentrating on three maneuvers in the vicinity of the moon—firing into lunar orbit, lowering the orbit to 12 miles before Antares is released for its descent and propelling Kitty Hawk out of orbit and back toward earth.

OAS Supports Ecuador Over Fishing Rights

Special Meeting To Be Convened To Study Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Latin American nations have closed ranks behind Ecuador and against the United States in agreeing to take up an Ecuadorian charge of U.S. coercion in the conflict over American fishing rights.

By a vote of 22 to 0, the hemisphere community convened a special meeting of the Organization of American States on Ecuador's allegation that the U.S. has been in violation of Article 19 of the OAS charter.

The United States vigorously objected to the charge but abstained in the vote Wednesday night at the Pan American Union.

Within hours of the vote, the American Tuna Boat Association in San Diego reported seizure of three more U.S. fishing vessels off Ecuador's coast. There now have been 17 seizures since Jan. 11.

Ecuador's charge stems from the military sanctions imposed last week by the U.S. after the first four vessels were seized within the 200-mile limit over which the South American nation claims jurisdiction.

Article 19 prohibits use of or the encouragement of use of "coercive measures of an economic or political character to force the sovereign will of another state."

U.S. Ambassador to the OAS Joseph John Jova rejected the allegation, saying the United States was compelled to impose the sanction under a law aimed at deterring illegal ship seizures. Jova urged the case be taken before the International Court of Justice or the Inter-American Commission on Peaceful Settlements.

Hashish Gaining In Popularity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bureau of Customs Commissioner Myles J. Ambrose says hashish now "is the drug of considerable choice of young people."

Ambrose made the statement Wednesday in disclosing the bureau seized 3,819 pounds of hashish in 1970, a 137 per cent increase over 1969.

He said the bureau kept no figures on smuggled hashish before 1967 because the amount was so small.

Seizures of other drugs also increased, he said, listing more than 100,000 pounds of marijuana seized in 1970, compared with 57,000 pounds in 1969.

Blast, Fire Rip Town; Fireman Dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 50-foot wall of flame sparked by explosions swept a half-block section of suburban West Conshohocken Wednesday night. The fire and additional blasts killed a young volunteer fireman, injured other persons and destroyed a dozen homes.

Witnesses said the fire along both sides of Front Street, on the Schuylkill River, was preceded by at least two explosions. Firemen were hampered by icy winds gusting to 36 miles per hour.

More than 100 volunteer firemen battled the flames for more than three hours. After Philadelphia Gas & Electric Co. employees turned off valves on gas lines serving the area the flames flickered and died out.

Most of the homes involved were reduced to rubble. Robert Ganley, chief of the Bridgeport fire department, said explosions occurred as firemen battled the flames that engulfed the two- and three-story brick row homes.

One blast—apparently from a gas main—gouged a hole in the middle of the street, he said. It could not be determined how many people occupied the destroyed homes.

Officials said 48 persons were injured and 46, many of them firemen, were taken to area hospitals for treatment. Fifteen were admitted, including three in critical condition and two in serious condition.

Winter Storm Causes 5 Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Record cold settled in New York and Maine today as high-wind crews fought subzero temperatures and a dying storm's still brisk winds to remove the snow that had isolated 7,000 square miles of upstate New York Wednesday.

Travel warnings were still up for New York state east of Lake Ontario because of drifting snow, although the New York State Thruway had been cleared and lesser travel arteries were being reopened.

With less wind factor to consider, today's predicted high of 15 degrees in the Circleville area will seem a great deal warmer than Wednesday's high of 17. The 5 p.m. temperature with winds of 30 miles per hour was equivalent to 19 degrees below zero, the warmest part of the previous 24-hour period.

Zero is forecast for an overnight low. Daytime temperatures Friday will be in the upper teens. Occasional snow flurries, forecast today, will end by Friday.

New snows were developing and areas around Buffalo and Syracuse could get 2 to 6 inches more, the National Weather Service said.

The storm was blamed for five deaths and more than 50 injuries as it charged across the northern Midwest Tuesday and into New England Wednesday.

The great mass of arctic air spread by the storm's 50-to-80-miles an hour winds, clamped subzero cold on at least a dozen states between the Northern Plains and the Atlantic Ocean this morning and stung the Deep South with its second hard freeze in little more than a week.

Zero cold extended from the Dakotas through New England. Readings in the low 20s ranged south as far as central Georgia. All roads in 11 counties of central and western New York were closed to all but emergency traffic.

Graham said Truman has expressed "an earnest desire to go home" to Independence, Mo., but the doctor did not say when he might do so. Truman entered research hospital last Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Ohio Natural Resources Director Fred E. Morr, 46, was sworn in Wednesday as the new chairman of the Ohio River Basin Commission.

Blizzard warnings remained in effect for the region east of Lake Ontario.

Near-blizzard conditions persisted in western Pennsylvania.

One of the storm-related deaths was a Conneautville woman who was found in her automobile, buried to the roof near her home.

The storm claimed one other life in Pennsylvania, two in Michigan and one in Indiana. Wind gusts up to 75 miles an hour and blowing snow brought a reduction of the normal 70-mile-an-hour speed limit on the Ohio Turnpike to 40 m.p.h. Wednesday.

Up to 2,000 travelers were stranded in motels and hotels across northern Ohio.

See Wave Of Senate Protest On U.S. Action In Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new wave of Senate protest may be touched off by Pentagon assessments that the U.S. air war in Cambodia must continue—and perhaps be stepped up.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in an interview that curbing American airpower could delay U.S. troop withdrawals from South Vietnam.

A more hawkish assessment came from Sen. John Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, after a secret briefing Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

If North Vietnamese achieve more military success in Cambodia, said the Mississippi Democrat, "we have to step up our support. Just what turn that would take, I don't know."

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, the only announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, sharply criticized Stennis' remarks.

"It alarms me that any U.S. senator should talk about expanding our military operations in Cambodia," he said.

"Very frankly, any senator who talks about sending American forces into Cambodia ought to lead the charge himself."

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., who sat in on the Laird briefing, said the secretary's report was optimistic. But Symington said he believes "we have gone further than we understood from the statements of President Nixon on June 30."

Stennis said the war is going well but its end is years away. He suggested Congress may have to reassess its ban on U.S. ground-combat troops in Cambodia "if this thing thickens up."

Stennis said, however, he does not anticipate "any large, new commitment, sending in a great number of ground troops."

In fact, said Adm. Moorer, "The use of our airpower in Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam is the best way to achieve our objectives in Southeast Asia with minimum casualties."

Limiting U.S. airpower would "stretch out the time required for the South Vietnamese and Cambodians to develop full-scale defenses" and delay Vietnamization of the war, he said.

"We've got to consider the safety of the troops," Moorer said. "Withdrawal must be made in an orderly manner."

Most members of the panel, which must pass on the nomination before it goes to the Senate floor, say they know little about the Texas controversy.

Others doubted Wednesday Connally would be implicated by Security and Exchange Commission charges of stock fraud filed against a number of Texas companies and individuals, including Waggoner Carr who was state attorney general when Connally was governor.

The Catholic organization allegedly victimized in the case was represented for a decade by Connally's law firm.

One solid sign the matter won't delay Connally's confirmation: Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., apparently has dropped an investigation of the former Navy secretary. Proxmire, who is not a committee member, planned to submit several questions for Connally but, aides said, does not expect to object to the nomination.

Sen. Wallace Bennett of Utah, ranking Republican on Finance, said he will question Connally about the stock case if no one else does.

The appointment has drawn more vociferous criticism for its political implications. The most commonly heard allegation is that Nixon's choice of the influential Texan was designed primarily to help win Texas for the Republican ticket in 1972, rather than for any Connally expertise in the money department. There has even been speculation Nixon might ask Connally to run for vice president in 1972 on the GOP ticket.

Connally would be Nixon's first Democratic cabinet member, replacing David Kennedy as Treasury secretary.

Orders Bulk Of Findings 'Expunged'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal judge today threw out a grand jury report critical of the Kent State University administration but let stand 25 indictments the jury returned as a result of violence on the campus last May.

U.S. District Court Judge William K. Thomas ordered the report of the special Portage County grand jury to be "physically expunged and destroyed" within 10 days.

His 50-page memorandum ruled against the entire 18-page grand jury report except for the indictments.

The jury investigation was ordered by former Gov. James A. Rhodes after 13 students were shot, four of them fatally, during a confrontation with national guardsmen on the campus last May 4.

The jury's report was critical of the Kent State administration and stated that the National Guardsmen on the campus were not liable to criminal prosecution.

Thomas ruling came in suits brought by students and faculty members of Kent State. They contended the jury report was prejudicial and went beyond powers of a grand jury.

The report contended the university administration had fostered "an attitude of laxity, over-indulgence and permissiveness with its students and faculty to the extent that it can no longer regulate the activities of either."

The jury claimed the university had recognized the right to dissent to the point where "dissent becomes the order of the day to the exclusion of all normal behavior and expression."

Most of the 25 indictments named Kent State students or former students on charges of rioting. None of those indicted have been tried.

Policeman Acquitted

GREENUP, Ky. (AP) — A Greenup County Circuit Court jury returned a verdict of innocent Wednesday night in the case of Portsmouth, Ohio, Patrolman Roger Smith, accused of first-degree murder in the death of Gary Wayne Prater, 23, of near Wallingford, Ky., last August.

Prater was shot to death after Patrolman Smith chased his car for an alleged traffic offense from Portsmouth across the U.S. Grant Bridge over the Ohio River into Kentucky. There both men lost control of their cars and crashed into a hillside.

The policeman said when he drew his gun to arrest Prater, the victim tried to grab the gun and it discharged accidentally. The grand jury which indicted Smith contended he had no right to draw his gun in Kentucky. Portsmouth officials said Smith was within his rights in pursuing Prater into that state.

The jury's verdict of innocent came after three hours of deliberation.

Ex-Guatemalan President Dies

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Jacobo Arbenz Guzman, the leftist Guatemalan president deposed by rightists with U.S. backing in 1954, was found dead in his bathtub Wednesday. He was 57.

Mexican officials said Arbenz had drowned. There was speculation that he had suffered a heart attack while preparing to take a bath and had fallen into the tub.

Arbenz, the son of a Swiss immigrant and a Guatemalan mother, began his rise to power as a young army colonel in the junta that overthrew dictator Jorge Ubico. He became President Juan Jose Aravena's defense minister, the springboard for his election to the presidency in 1950.

OAS Supports Ecuador Over Fishing Rights

Special Meeting To Be Convened To Study Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Latin American nations have closed ranks behind Ecuador and against the United States in agreeing to take up an Ecuadorian charge of U.S. coercion in the conflict over American fishing rights.

Ecuador's charge stems from the military sanctions imposed last week by the U.S. after the first four vessels were seized within the 200-mile limit over which the South American nation claims jurisdiction.

Article 19 prohibits use or the encouragement of use of "coercive measures of an economic or political character to force the sovereign will of another state."

U.S. Ambassador to the OAS Joseph John Jova rejected the allegation, saying the United States was compelled to impose the sanction under a law aimed at deterring illegal ship seizures. Connally Seeks Confirmation

Appears Before Finance Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Connally may face questions today about a Texas stock-fraud case involving many of his political friends—but his nomination as Treasury secretary appears a certain winner in the Senate Finance Committee.

Policeman Acquitted

GREENUP, Ky. (AP) — A Greenup County Circuit Court jury returned a verdict of innocent Wednesday night in the case of Portsmouth, Ohio, Patrolman Roger Smith, accused of first-degree murder in the death of Gary Wayne Prater, 23, of near Wallingford, Ky., last August.

Prater was shot to death after Patrolman Smith chased his car for an alleged traffic offense from Portsmouth across the U.S. Grant Bridge over the Ohio River into Kentucky. There both men lost control of their cars and crashed into a hillside.

The policeman said when he drew his gun to arrest Prater, the victim tried to grab the gun and it discharged accidentally. The grand jury which indicted Smith contended he had no right to draw his gun in Kentucky. Portsmouth officials said Smith was within his rights in pursuing Prater into that state.

The jury's verdict of innocent came after three hours of deliberation.

Ex-Guatemalan President Dies

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Jacobo Arbenz Guzman, the leftist Guatemalan president deposed by rightists with U.S. backing in 1954, was found dead in his bathtub Wednesday. He was 57.

Mexican officials said Arbenz had drowned. There was speculation that he had suffered a heart attack while preparing to take a bath and had fallen into the tub.

Arbenz, the son of a Swiss immigrant and a Guatemalan mother, began his rise to power as a young army colonel in the junta that overthrew dictator Jorge Ubico. He became President Juan Jose Arevalo's defense minister, the springboard for his election to the presidency in 1950.

U.S. Hopes To End Air War In Vietnam By End Of 1972

By GEORGE ESPER Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — All U.S. Air Force combat units are to be withdrawn from South Vietnam by the end of 1972, leaving only advisers and technicians, if the air war is sufficiently Vietnamized by then, military sources said today.

Meanwhile, the sources said, the United States is conducting the heaviest bombing campaign of the war in Laos and Cambodia in an effort to force North Vietnam "to make accommodations" and to pave the way for the withdrawal.

"Our present timetable calls for the withdrawal of all Air Force units from South Vietnam by the end of 1972," said one source. "Hopefully 1973 will begin with no U.S. squadrons in Vietnam, if everything is on schedule. But advisers and technicians will remain. How many, I can't say now."

The sources also left open the possibility that even after all American squadrons are pulled out of Vietnam, the United States will continue to provide air support for its allies in Indochina from bases in Thailand and from aircraft carriers of the 7th Fleet.

The sources said up to 500 U.S. warplanes from the Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps are making daily raids on North Vietnamese troops and supply routes in Laos and Cambodia.

Some attacks are in direct support of South Vietnamese, Cambodian and Laotian troops fighting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong. But about 75 per cent of the raids are against enemy supply routes, depots and troops along the Ho Chi Minh trail through southern Laos.

The sources said the effectiveness of the campaign won't be known until May, when the current dry season ends. North Vietnam makes its big movement of troops and supplies southward during the dry season because the jungle roads and trails are much less passable in the monsoon season.

Withdrawal of all U.S. squadrons in the next two years depends on three factors, the sources said:

1. The effect the campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail has in reducing North Vietnam's effectiveness to fight and to launch major offensives while U.S. forces are being withdrawn;
2. Some accommodation by the North Vietnamese in scaling down their activities;
3. Progress in the training and capabilities of the South Vietnamese air force.

The U.S. Air Force now has 30 air squadrons in South Vietnam, with a total of more than 700 aircraft and 42,200 men. No squadrons are being withdrawn during the current sixth-phase cutback of American troops that will reduce authorized U.S. strength to 284,000 men by May 1.

The South Vietnamese air force has 32 squadrons, 700 planes and helicopters, and about 40,000 men. The present goal is 50 squadrons and 1,200 planes and helicopters.

In the war, the U.S. Command reported that 50 Americans were killed in action in Indochina last week, an increase of 13 over the previous week. A spokesman attributed the rise to two air crashes that killed 14 Americans.

Another 25 U.S. servicemen died of nonhostile causes last week, and 295 were wounded in action, the command said.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 274 of its men killed and 816 wounded last week. The allies claimed 1,038 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed.

Little ground action was reported today in Vietnam, but three grenades ripped through a theater in coastal Binh Dinh Province, killing 10 Vietnamese and wounding 19. The South Vietnamese command said the grenades were thrown by "Communist terrorists."

WELL-ATTENDED — Over 200 attended the third Pickaway County Family YMCA Annual Meeting Wednesday evening in the basement of the Methodist Church. During the program special recognition was given to Founders and Century Club members who had given $1,000 and $100 respectively to the local Y movement. Seen in the background is the Circleville Boys' Choir, under the direction of Paul Dunkle, who provided entertainment for the meeting.

Ohio Shelves Big Projects Due To Federal Aid Cuts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has had to shelve indefinitely at least 30 capital improvement projects worth more than $18 million because of more stringent restrictions on federal matching funds.

A fund established in 1964 to handle $540 million in referendum bond issue money plus federal matching funds has dwindled to less than $500,000.

A request to shelve the projects was made in a private memorandum by former Finance Director Howard Collier to the state Controlling Board in mid-December and revealed Wednesday.

"We had to ask the controlling board to not approve any further projects that would have been constructed by the bond monies," said James H. Leckrone, administrative assistant to Finance Director Harold A. Hovey.

The largest project affected by the freeze is a $3.8 million lodge proposed for the Mohican State Forest in Richland and Ashland counties.

Also affected is $6 million in proposed community water and sewer extension work and a planned $1.7 million undergraduate library at Ohio State University.

Other projects involve less than $1 million apiece. All the work is in the areas of education and natural resources.

"It's nobody's fault," said Leckrone. "There were just some federal matching funds that didn't materialize on various projects. Some of them date back to the Johnson administration."

"The bond issues and federal funds received allowed us to build over $559 million in capital improvement projects from the fund."

He said work on the projects could be revived if federal funds become available, if the legislature appropriates new money to finance it or if other financing methods are found.

Leckrone added that affected agencies are studying possible alternative funding for some of the work. He declined to elaborate.

Base Wage To Go Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 1.6 million workers who are making the minimum wage will receive a hike in their salary Monday.

The Labor Department announced Wednesday the minimum wage will increase from $1.45 to $1.60 per hour Monday when the last step in the 1966 federal minimum wage hikes goes into effect.

The increase chiefly affects workers in smaller retail or service establishments, laundries and dry cleaners, hotels, motels, restaurants, schools, nonfederal hospitals and nursing homes.

Other workers among the total of about 46 million covered by the federal minimum wage previously reached the $1.60 figure. The latest increase affects those workers brought under coverage of the Fair Labor Standards Act for the first time by amendments enacted in 1966.

The minimum wage for agriculture workers on large farms will remain at $1.30 per hour.

Rhodes Announces 20 Motel Projects

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former Gov. James A. Rhodes, who now heads an industrial development consulting firm, has announced that he and Don Hultiker of Bellefontaine will build 20 Howard Johnson Motels in the South, East and Midwest.

He said the building and operation of the motels would be a joint venture of the James A. Rhodes and Associates and the Don S. Hultiker Co. The first motel will be in Orlando, Fla.

MISS EDITH BENNETT
Miss Edith Bennett, 87, New Holland, died 5:30 a.m. Thursday at Fayette Memorial Hospital, Washington C. H.

Born May 20, 1883 in Ross County near New Holland, she was the daughter of Milton and Belle Pinkerton Bennett.

She resided her entire life in the New Holland area and was a member of New Holland United Methodist Church.

Surviving is one sister, Miss Annalee Bennett of New Holland.

Services will be 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, New Holland with Rev. Frank White officiating. Burial will be in New Holland Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 3 to 8 p.m. Friday.

Two Arraigned On Gun Charge

The two Kentucky and Cincinnati area men indicted secretly by the January grand jury for carrying concealed weapons appeared for arraignment this morning on three separate charges on illegal possession of firearms.

Roosevelt Collins and James Iverson, entered pleas of innocent to the charges and asked that date be set for trial. A third member, Roosevelt's brother David, was unable to appear today due to injuries he received in an accident in Indiana recently.

The trio were apprehended in December when Sheriff Deputy Bill Dountz noticed their car parked near Lutz's Market at Court and High Sts. and ran a check on them. Iverson was found to have an extensive criminal record for armed robbery, auto theft, burglary, grand larceny and rape. Several guns were found in the auto during a search, one in a loaf of bread purchased at the market.

Iverson has been released on previous bond but Collins is currently being held at the jail until new bond can be made.

White Merger Ordered Halted

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The federal government has obtained a court order blocking, at least temporarily, the merger of White Motor Corp. into White Consolidated Industries, Inc.

The merger of the two giant Cleveland concerns was to have been consummated Friday. The government announced plans to step in Tuesday and on Wednesday was granted a temporary restraining order by U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti.

Ship Aground; Oil Leaks Out

NEW YORK (AP) — A tanker loaded with 420,000 gallons of oil ran aground and sprang a leak today off southern Long Island on the Atlantic Ocean, the Coast Guard reported.

It could not be determined immediately how much of the oil leaked into the sea.

The Coast Guard said it was a small leak, and that it had been "stopped or severely reduced" about two hours after the ship — the SS Verdon — went aground about 9 a.m.

The Coast Guard said a barge had pulled alongside the Verdon to take on some of its oil. A spokesman said a tug probably would try to pull the ship off the sandbar at high tide around 8 p.m.

No injuries were reported to the seven-man crew.

Koslofsky Pleads Guilty

The case of William E. Koslofsky scheduled to be heard before a three-judge panel today never came to trial.

Attorney for Koslofsky informed the judges that his client wished to enter a guilty plea to the two charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Judges Roger Hotte, Howard Goldsberry and William Ammer agreed to the change in plea.

Sentencing of the alleged con man will take place this afternoon when the probation department has had time to make a report for the judges.

Prosecutor Roy Huffer informed the judges during the morning's hearing that he would approve probation for Koslofsky on the condition that he make full restitution of the money taken from some 15 Pickaway County residents and at least two Fairfield Countians as down-payments on modular homes he claimed to be selling.

The bogus salesman reportedly has raised $825 of an estimated $1,200 taken from area citizens.

If given a penitentiary sentence, Koslofsky could be jailed up to six years maximum on the two charges.

Golden Shoe Club Member Honored

LARRY WALLS

Larry Walls, an employee of PPG Industries, Circleville Plant, was awarded a lifetime membership in the Golden Shoe Club.

Approval for Walls' membership was announced today by James E. Fraunfelder, Plant Safety Engineer.

Conscientious use of safety shoes by Walls saved his foot from injury when a steel drum he was helping to unload from a truck slipped and fell on his shoe.

Bruce Mohrhard, executive secretary of the Golden Shoe Club, congratulated Walls for his foresight in avoiding what could have been a serious accident.

His thoughtfulness in wearing safety shoes reflects very good judgement in behalf of his personal welfare and that of his family. Mohrhard further stated, "We are pleased to award you lifetime membership in the Golden Shoe Club which is dedicated to foot safety; and we extend a hearty welcome to you, as a new member of this organization."

Bonds Forfeited

Clarence Pettit, 50, Kingston, and Bonita Hessel, 37, Ashville, both forfeited $24 bonds posted in Circleville Municipal Court when they were charged with failure to heed stop signs.

Elmer Brown, 43, Ashville, forfeited a $29 bond for speeding 77 miles per hour in a 60 mile zone.

SERTOMA — The guest speaker at Wednesdays noon luncheon meeting of the Circleville Sertoma Club was Charles Meng (right), a watch supervisor at Port Columbus. Meng has served for 23-years as a control tower operator. He spoke on the operations of the tower and radar room at Port Columbus, and discussed the duties and responsibilities of a control tower operator. The program chairman this week was Bruce Stevenson (left).

Committee Named To Pick Red Cross Slate Of Officers

Board member attendance at the regular monthly meeting of Pickaway County Chapter Red Cross was low Wednesday night due to extreme cold weather and conflicting meetings. Vice Chairman John Harbaugh presided in the absence of Chairman Howard Judd.

A nominating committee was appointed to prepare a slate of officers for presentation at the annual re-organization meeting scheduled April 28. Mrs. John Sanders will head the committee of Mrs. J. Boyd Stout and Robert Scanton. All members of Red Cross will be eligible to vote. Any person who has contributed one dollar or more to Red Cross is a member of the organization.

Mrs. Sanders was also appointed along with board member D. Richard Wylie to represent the local Red Cross Chapter to Community Fund.

Executive Secretary Mrs. Roloff Wolford reported service to military between Dec. 9-Jan. 27 involved 47 families. Service extended was in areas of health and welfare, grants, loans, emergency leave or extension of leave, death and birth notices, assistance to veterans, and general assistance and counseling which totalled 92 services committed in addition to 22 long distance phone calls on behalf of the military.

Concerning First Aid courses being offered by Red Cross, it was reported John Harbaugh is currently conducting two classes at Orient State Institute and has scheduled instruction in February to members of the Harrisburg Twp. Fire Department, Auxiliary and general public.

Pickaway Twp. Fire Dept. is receiving first aid instruction through Bob Featheringham who is soon to start a class at Ashville.

Beginning Feb. 15, Jack Simson will instruct classes for the public at Good Shepherd Service Center in Circleville.

No action was taken Wednesday in answer to a request made to Red Cross to teach first aid at Deer Creek Reservoir.

Board members discussed the drug abuse problem in Pickaway County and the need to establish a program involving concerned social and civic clubs, agencies and organizations. Dr. Stephen Yost, chairman of Red Cross community affairs will be aided by Dr. E. J. Warner and John Harbaugh, Red Cross board members to effect such a program.

Mrs. Wolford noted that volunteers, individuals or groups are needed for hospital mending. A few hours or a few minutes of time to aid in the project would be appreciated. Interested persons should contact Red Cross at Chapter

Larry Walls, an employee of PPG Industries, Circleville Plant, was awarded a lifetime membership in the Golden Shoe Club.

Approval for Walls' membership was announced today by James E. Fraunhofer, Plant Safety Engineer.

Conscientious use of safety shoes by Walls saved his foot from injury when a steel drum he was helping to unload from a truck slipped and fell on his shoe.

Bruce Mohrhard, executive secretary of the Golden Shoe Club, congratulated Walls for his foresight in avoiding what could have been a serious accident.

His thoughtfulness in wearing safety shoes reflects very good judgement in behalf of his personal welfare and that of his family. Mohrhard further stated, "We are pleased to award you lifetime membership in the Golden Shoe Club which is dedicated to foot safety; and we extend a hearty welcome to you, as a new member of this organization."

Beginning Feb. 15, Jack Simson will instruct classes for the public at Good Shepherd Service Center in Circleville.

No action was taken Wednesday in answer to a request made to Red Cross to teach first aid at Deercreek Reservoir.

Board members discussed the drug abuse problem in Pickaway County and the need to establish a program involving social and civic clubs, agencies and organizations. Dr. Stephen Yost, chairman of Red Cross community affairs will be aided by Dr. E. J. Warner and John Harbaugh, Red Cross board members to effect such a program.

Mrs. Wolford noted that volunteers, individuals or groups are needed for hospital mending. A few hours or a few minutes of time to aid in the project would be appreciated. Interested persons should contact Red Cross at Chapter

SERTOMA — The guest speaker at Wednesdays noon luncheon meeting of the Circleville Sertoma Club was Charles Meng (right), a watch supervisor at Port Columbus. Meng has served for 23-years as a control tower operator. He spoke on the operations of the tower and radar room at Port Columbus, and discussed the duties and responsibilities of a control tower operator. The program chairman this week was Bruce Stevenson (left).

Committee Named To Pick Red Cross Slate Of Officers

Board member attendance at the regular monthly meeting of Pickaway County Chapter Red Cross was low Wednesday night due to extreme cold weather and conflicting meetings. Vice Chairman John Harbaugh presided in the absence of Chairman Howard Judd.

A nominating committee was appointed to prepare a slate of officers for presentation at the annual re-organization meeting scheduled April 28. Mrs. John Sanders will head the committee of Mrs. J. Boyd Stout and Robert Scranton. All members of Red Cross will be eligible to vote. Any person who has contributed one dollar or more to Red Cross is a member of the organization.

Mrs. Sanders was also appointed along with board member D. Richard Wylie to represent the local Red Cross Chapter to Community Fund.

Executive Secretary Mrs. Roliff Wolford reported service to military between Dec. 9-Jan. 27 involved 47 families. Service extended was in areas of health and welfare, grants, loans, emergency leave or extension of leave, death and birth notices, assistance to veterans, and general assistance and counseling which totalled 92 services committed in addition to 22 long distance phone calls on behalf of the military.

Concerning First Aid courses being offered by Red Cross, it was reported John Harbaugh is currently conducting two classes at Orient State Institute and has scheduled instruction in February to members of the Harrisburg Twp. Fire Department, Auxiliary and general public.

Pickaway Twp. Fire Dept. is receiving first aid instruction through Bob Featheringham who is soon to start a class at Ashville.

Beginning Feb. 15, Jack Simson will instruct classes for the public at Good Shepherd Service Center in Circleville.

Dear Abby:

Don't Call 'Friends' On The Carpet

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in the carpet business. We do beautiful work and our prices are right. When so-called "friends" show us carpet they have installed in their homes, which they bought somewhere else, and they ask us what we think of it, what should we say (They even have the nerve to tell us how much they paid for it.)

Nine times out of 10 it is a poor job of installation, and they paid too much. I always tell them the truth. My husband says I should never knock the competition, regardless, otherwise it will sound like sour grapes.

These same people never even let us give them an estimate! I say why should we consider their feelings if they don't consider ours? What do you think?

CARPET PEOPLE
DEAR PEOPLE: I think your husband is right. And the same goes for people in the jewelry business, furniture business, fur business, and every other kind of business.

DEAR ABBY: Our first baby is 7 weeks old, and I am breast-feeding her. A lot of young mothers wouldn't want to be bothered with breast-feeding, but I don't mind because I think it's healthier for the baby. My husband doesn't appreciate it at all, in fact, I think he'd rather I put the baby on the bottle. He has as much as said so.

The problem is that when I feed the baby and my husband has some of his friends here he asks me to go into another room. I don't see why. There is nothing bad or sexy about a mother nursing her child. He says he doesn't like for me to feed the baby that way in front of his friends and I am hurt. Do you see anything wrong with it? Please settle this as I think he is wrong and he thinks I am.

NURSING MOTHER:
DEAR NURSING MOTHER: Knowing how your husband feels about it, nurse the baby in private and keep the peace.

DEAR ABBY: A while back you had a letter from a woman who made her husband shave his chest. She must be screwy. And any man who would let his wife talk him into it must be screwy too.

I have a very hairy chest which I wouldn't shave for any amount of money. I sleep with only pajama bottoms and my wife says she'd rather feel my hairy chest against her cheek than the collar of a mink coat.

HAIRY AND HAPPY
DEAR ABBY: I think it was very considerate of that hairy husband to shave his chest for his wife. My husband is hairy as an ape and he refuses to do anything about it. We sleep spoon-fashion with me in front, and sometimes I just about go crazy when his big hairy chest heaves up and down and tickles my shoulders and back-in rhythm, yet, I know just how that lady must have felt.

Are Kitchen Carpets Practical?

They sure are—if they're from the Nice 'n' Easy collection by Monarch Carpet Mills.

They're practical because they:

- clean easily... (crumbs whisk away with a broom or vacuum and spills blot or wipe up with a damp cloth)
- cushion your every step... (cutting down on fatigue)
- bring kitchen noise down to a whisper... (saves on china breakage too!)
- virtually wear forever... (never fuzz or pill)

Practical and beautiful Nice 'n' Easy Carpet comes in six different patterns to go with any decorating scheme and a variety of colors coordinated with today's popular appliances. Nice 'n' Easy Carpet is sure to please the most practical person. Walk softly on Nice 'n' Easy in the kitchen, den, hall or anywhere your family "makes tracks."

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Coey and sons, Neal and Tom were Tuesday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Higley and children, Shawn and Jamie. The occasion was Mr. Higley's birthday.

Mrs. Ilda Tatman was the honored guest at a birthday dinner held in the home of Mrs. Christine Severance, Dayton, Jan. 17. The occasion celebrated

Mrs. Tatman's 95th birthday. She is a native of Ross County and lived in and near Hallsville, until a broken hip and wrist caused her to be hospitalized two years ago. She thoroughly enjoyed the birthday celebration, enjoys good health and received many birthday greetings from her many friends.

Mrs. Taman visited at home of Sam Dresbach, Chillicothe, at Christmas time, to join her family in Christmas festivities. She appreciated a multitude of Christmas cards and encourages mail. Her address is: Ohio Masonic Home, Rickly Hospital — Room 416, Springfield, 44501.

Are Kitchen Carpets Practical?

They sure are—if they're from the Nice 'n' Easy collection by Monarch Carpet Mills.

They're practical because they:

- clean easily... (crumbs whisk away with a broom or vacuum and spills blot or wipe up with a damp cloth)
- cushion your every step... (cutting down on fatigue)
- bring kitchen noise down to ■ whisper... (saves on china breakage too!)
- virtually wear forever... (never fuzz or pill)

Practical and beautiful Nice 'n' Easy Carpet comes in six different patterns to go with any decorating scheme and a variety of colors coordinated with today's popular appliances. Nice 'n' Easy Carpet is sure to please the most practical person. Walk softly on Nice 'n' Easy in the kitchen, den, hall or anywhere your family "makes tracks."

Air Safety Record

The safety record compiled by the scheduled airlines in the United States during 1970 deserves commendation. For the first time since 1938, when the first records were kept, not a single life was lost in scheduled domestic service. The only fatal crash on an overseas flight occurred during the final week of the year, when a Trans Caribbean Airways jet crashed at St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, killing two.

This record is a continuation of the sharp reduction in accidents achieved in 1969, and a further reassurance that air accidents are preventable. The experience of the last two years was a major improvement over the early 1960's, which brought 200 to 300 fatalities each year.

General familiarization with jet equipment over the last decade is one of the reasons credited for the improved safety record by the safety chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

While applauding last year's record, officials of the industry caution that with the large new jets coming into use, even one accident could drastically alter the fatality rate. That kind of cautionary advice is a challenge to the industry to prove that the accomplishments of the last two years are no fluke, and that safety in the air is not only possible, but to be expected.

Safeguard Scores

Opponents of the Safeguard ABM system based part of their opposition to funding the system on the argument that since it had never been tried no one knew whether it would work. Now they know.

The second phase of the system, the short-range Sprint missile, has been successfully fired by the Air Force from a launch pad in Kwajalein and accurately intercepted the nose cone of an ICBM fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base, 4,200 miles away.

A similar test last August proved the other half of the defense system, the longer-range Spartan missile, was similarly successful. Together, these two missiles are designed to protect the United States from either a surprise or accidental attack by a nuclear-armed ICBM. The Sprint is a back-up weapon in the event an incoming missile is able to evade the destructive force of the Spartan.

On a simulated basis at least, both major components of the Safeguard system have proved their accuracy the first time out. That is a good batting average for defensive missiles as advanced as these.

Both successes will not end the Safeguard controversy, but they do disarm ABM opponents of one of their rallying points — the claim of unreliability.

Convenience Costs

It is an interesting fact of human nature that shoppers who complain about rising prices would be dismayed at the suggestion they might do without some of the frills which innovation brings to the marketplace.

Housewives, for instance, have gone for convenience foods in a big way, even though they cost more than the do-it-yourself variety.

One study recently demonstrated that a frozen turkey dinner which cost 59 cents per serving could be duplicated from scratch for 26 cents per plate. But that computation gives no value at all to the cook's time.

There's the rub. Convenience items, whether foods or power tools, seldom do more than a less expensive item, except save time. In a time conscious world, that is enough.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — For 57 years the Federal Reserve System has guarded what it considers its birthright, the operation of an efficient monetary system carefully maintaining its independence even of the President.

During this time it sometimes scorned critics who questioned the wisdom of its operations or the scope of its vision, feeling that it had a sacred duty to maintain monetary discipline, even at the expense of short-term political and social considerations.

"The function of the Federal Reserve System is to foster a flow of credit and money that will facilitate orderly economic growth, a stable dollar, and long-run balance in our international payments."

That is how the FRS describes its role. It isn't the way some critics would like to see the nation's central bank operated. Where, they ask, are the specific social and humane goals the bank might have in mind?

In particular, they ask if FRS policy regarding credit has contributed to the drain of mortgage money from housing, made funds unavailable for urban rehabilitation and contributed to the financial plight of local governments.

Among the chief critics has been Rep. Wright Patman, the Texas Democrat who heads the House Committee on Banking and Currency.

"They have contended that their job is to administer monetary policy with a broad brush without concern for special sectors of the economy and without regard to economic and social goals," he states. "However, in the actual application of this policy, the credit of the nation has been allocated unevenly, with the larger and more affluent elements of society willing and able to outbid the more needy sectors . . ."

Now Patman has for ammunition a staff report by five researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who examined the practices of 11 foreign central banks.

It is called "Activities by Various Central Banks to Promote Economic and Social Welfare Programs."

"Central banks in most countries," the report states, "designate certain sectors of the economy that are to receive favorable treatment from the central bank. . . In some cases this is done to aid preferentially particular sectors and in some cases this is done to offset the uneven impacts of private money markets."

In other words, such banks to one extent or another are used to promote social and economic goals. "This report clears up the mass of misconceptions about the utilization of monetary policy to meet basic economic needs," Patman said.

"For years," he continued, "we have heard officials of the Federal Reserve System claim that allocation of credit by a central bank is both impractical and unworkable."

Other central banks, said Patman in releasing the report, successfully allocate credit and are an integral part of economic planning. But to the FRS, he suggested, this only means that all the others are out of step.

Prof. Lester Thurow, who headed the study, declines to make any judgments based on the strictly factual report, but he does agree that all 11 central banks studied involve themselves more directly in socio-economic issues.

"Our purpose was not to make a judgement as to what the Federal Reserve should do," he said. "It was to open up the issues to discussions, to make legitimate those questions the Federal Reserve has felt were not legitimate."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A TERSE but accurate gauge of "intellectual freedom" in Soviet Russia is conveyed by the story of the Moscow wife who has been listening to a newscast on TV and rushes to her husband to urge, "Quick, Sergei, go into hiding! You've just won the Nobel Prize for Literature!"

Advertising expert Jerry Della Femina once asked a wildly successful competitor, "What happened between the time you were shooting down planes in World War II and now, when you're a terrified account executive?" The competitor gave the question due consideration, then answered slowly, "Well, for one thing, the Nazis never tried to take away one of my accounts."

Della Femina, now immortalized in a breezy biography by Charles Sopsin, discloses that one of the most soul-satisfying campaigns he ever master-minded was staged to sell sewing machines in Peru. The buyers were Indians who couldn't run them because they had no place to plug them in—but they looked pretty in the living room, anyway. "And," adds Della Femina, "if you got the Indian to make a down payment, you were breaking even. The rest of the stuff was gravy."

A teaching sister, applying for a passport, paused momentarily at the question on the form demanding "Distinguishing Marks," then, with a twinkle in her eyes, printed "Nun."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

In the past four weeks I have had an operation on my bladder and my womb.

I am now extremely nervous and hope you will send me any literature which will help my restlessness and nervousness.

Mrs. H.G., Mich. Dear Mrs. G.: Any surgery, and particularly the kind you describe, must be followed by a period of weakness, fatigue and nervousness.

An operation under general anesthesia is a severe blow to the physical and emotional reserve of the patient.

It is unreasonable to expect that the body can quickly recover its strength and permit you to go right back to full activity.

No booklet or medical column can substitute for the information that your own physician can give you.

Today, all doctors and surgeons know that an operation alone is not considered the end of treatment. No until the patient once again is able to function with restored physical and emotional strength can he be considered cured.

You have a perfect right, after such a short time, to have the feelings you describe.

You do yourself an injustice, however, by severing your association with your doctors at such an early date.

Your own doctor can tell you of many excellent drugs and food supplements to help restore your energy. In the meantime, tranquilizing drugs given by your physician will allay your restlessness until you are completely recovered.

I am worried that I am suffering from Paget's disease. How can I know if I have it?

Mr. A. L., R. I. Dear Mr. L.: I am curious to know why you chose this particular disease to worry about.

Paget's disease is a comparatively rare condition associated with a thickening of the bones of the skull.

For many years, I have written in these columns that the description of symptoms too often instill unnecessary fears in readers.

Similar symptoms so often describe totally different conditions. As you have done, many people are quick to think, "That's exactly what I have." Usually they are completely wrong.

In such instances, fears can mount and cause emotional stress. In your case, all you have to do is see your physician. He will X-ray your skull and, undoubtedly, relieve your anxiety about a condition that most likely does not exist.

Average Spending
LONDON (AP) — British housewives spent an average 2 pounds (4.80 dollars) a week during 1969 on food for each person in their households, the National Food Survey Committee reported. It said the outlay was 25 pence (cents) a week more than in 1968, with 22 pence (cents) of the increase caused by inflation.

The Campus Calm

By JEFFERY HART

"I didn't even want to come back here last fall," said a colleague of mine in the Dartmouth English Department. "Last year was so impossible. But nothing has happened. My fall courses went better than ever."

His feeling of relief that the political fevers seem to have abated is pretty typical of faculty members at Dartmouth. But why the change in student mood, and how permanent is it? Some notes:

One Dartmouth junior I know is an example of Instant Disillusion of the Naive. Last May, after Cambodia, he went down to Washington to, as he put it, "work within the system." He and his friends spoke to several Congressmen, advising them to stop the war at once.

"Nothing happened," he said to me last week. "Congress is a phony."

He has therefore abandoned politics as hopeless and is comfortably pursuing his studies. His is not an isolated case.

A great many other students have been brought to a salutary kind of self-knowledge. For years, they had been told by official bootlickers from Washington and on down through principals, deans and college presidents that they were the brightest and most idealistic generation ever, and that they were the last best hope of the Republic. They seem to have believed this.

During the Cambodia spring, the affluents thus generated peaked. Hordes of students were now going to really dedicate themselves to politics, to ending war, poverty, and racism. Yes, they knew this could not be done at once, it would take work, but the time to begin was now.

And so there took place the fall Congressional elections — and none of the students came. A few worked for Drinan. Jim Buckley had more. But by and large the students did nothing — even when, as at Princeton, they were given two weeks off for the purpose. The students' own candor then forced the recognition that most of the rhetoric had been hot air.

Other factors have played varying roles. The complexities of Vietnamization, plus the obvious intransigence of Hanoi, muffle the war as an issue. The fact that students now must eventually face the draft lottery has removed a deep and festering source of guilt. Dartmouth, for its part, has gone all out to admit blacks, Indians, and so on, and therefore cannot be accused of racism — except to the extent that Dartmouth allows the Negroes themselves to practice formal segregation. The ironies here are not lost on the students and this makes for a good deal of healthy skepticism about liberal moralism.

How lasting will this calm be? My own view is that it cannot be permanent.

First of all, campus disruption is by no means accidental. One of two things required is leadership, and there remains in being at Dartmouth, as on most campuses, a hard core of leftist activists. They are dedicated to transforming the college into an instrument of their political will. The most energetic individuals in this "radical caucus" are serious revolutionaries, outspoken in their support of the Viet Cong and similar movements. This fall, they had little to do, so they conducted a wheel-spinning operation, agitating an supposed case of political bias against a leftist in the Economics Department. Nothing much came of it, but then nothing much was supposed to; it was busy work.

This point is that the leadership is alive, well, and waiting. And since we live in a period of world revolution, there cannot fail to appear an issue which this kind of leadership can project in such a way as to achieve substantial support. At that point the kissing will come to a stop.

MOPPING UP operations along crucial Highway 4 in Cambodia apparently are more important than one might suppose. These female Cambodian soldiers probably are preparing to inflict hairraiment.

The ironies here are not lost on the students and this makes for a good deal of healthy skepticism about liberal moralism.

How lasting will this calm be? My own view is that it cannot be permanent.

First of all, campus disruption is by no means accidental. One of two things required is leadership, and there remains in being at Dartmouth, as on most campuses, a hard core of leftist activists. They are dedicated to transforming the college into an instrument of their political will. The most energetic individuals in this "radical caucus" are serious revolutionaries, outspoken in their support of the Viet Cong and similar movements. This fall, they had little to do, so they conducted a wheel-spinning operation, agitating unconvincingly over a supposed case of political bias against a leftist in the Economics Department. Nothing much came of it, but then nothing much was supposed to; it was busy work.

This point is that the leadership is alive, well, and waiting. And since we live in a period of world revolution, there cannot fail to appear an issue which this kind of leadership can project in such a way as to achieve substantial support. At that point the kissing will come to a stop.

MOPPING UP operations along crucial Highway 4 in Cambodia apparently are more important than one might suppose. These female Cambodian soldiers probably are preparing to inflict hairraiment.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Jan. 28, the 28th day of 1971. There are 337 days left in the year.

On this date in 1878, the world's first commercial telephone switchboard was installed in New Haven, Conn. Twenty-one subscribers plugged in.

On this date: In 1871, the French surrendered to the Germans in the Franco-Prussian War.

In 1915, President Woodrow Wilson signed legislation creating the U.S. Coast Guard.

In 1916, the late Louis D. Brandeis was nominated to be an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1945, the first American truck convoy traveled the reopened Burma Road in World War II.

Ten years ago: Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu appealed for a United Nations force to put down the revolt against his government by supporters of deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Five years ago: Explosions and fires in the Plymouth and Paramount hotels in downtown Boston killed 12, injured 50.

One year ago: President Nixon won a victory when the House of Representatives sustained his veto of the $19.7 billion education and labor appropriation bill.

NEW YORK (AP) — Some things we could do without:

Haircuts that make girls look like sheepdogs.

People who do the planning for planned obsolescence.

Anybody who buys a sauna bath with the idea it will serve him as a conversation piece the rest of his life.

Street card peddlers who charge 35 cents for a hot dog so skinny you'd think it had been on a three-week starvation diet itself.

Decaying snow.

Men's neckties wider than the smile of a hippopotamus.

Steak tartar, artichokes and tapicaca pudding.

All reminiscences of gall bladder operations. Memoirs of people who adopted strange pets, such as octopuses or aardvarks.

Anything which you don't need but which you can get two of if you fork up another penny. Girls who try to practice on you the charms they learned at a charm school.

Young mothers with nicotine-yellowed fingers.

Teen-age boys who carry not one but two pocket combs.

Motorists who drive with their horn instead of their head.

Receding hairlines, gumlins and hemlines.

Anything you can see through but isn't worth looking at. Invitations at $50 a plate to testimonial dinners for someone you never heard of.

Pickets who don't believe in anything but who, for pay, will carry placards supporting or denouncing any cause.

Tricky little babies you can pick up dry but always have to put down wet.

Anonymous letters from spiteful people who say they are only writing you for your own good.

People who actually relish picking from a tank of live fish or lobsters at an expensive restaurant the very one they will be consuming within the hour.

Listening to a golfer describe the weather and the condition of the green the day in 1939 when he missed making a hole in one by a mere inch and a half.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — For 57 years the Federal Reserve System has guarded what it considers its birthright, the operation of an efficient monetary system carefully maintaining its independence even of the President.

During this time it sometimes scorned critics who questioned the wisdom of its operations or the scope of its vision, feeling that it had a sacred duty to maintain monetary discipline, even at the expense of short-term political and social considerations.

"The function of the Federal Reserve System is to foster a flow of credit and money that will facilitate orderly economic growth, a stable dollar, and long-run balance in our international payments."

That is how the FRS describes its role. It isn't the way some critics would like to see the nation's central bank operated. Where, they ask, are the specific social and humane goals the bank might have in mind?

In particular, they ask if FRS policy regarding credit has contributed to the drain of mortgage money from housing, made funds unavailable for urban rehabilitation and contributed to the financial plight of local governments.

Among the chief critics has been Rep. Wright Patman, the Texas Democrat who heads the House Committee on Banking and Currency.

"They have contended that their job is to administer monetary policy with a broad brush without concern for special sectors of the economy and without regard to economic and social goals," he states. "However, in the actual application of this policy, the credit of the nation has been allocated unevenly, with the larger and more affluent elements of society willing and able to outbid the more needy sectors . . ."

Now Patman has for ammunition a staff report by five researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who examined the practices of 11 for-eign central banks.

It is called "Activities by Various Central Banks to Promote Economic and Social Welfare Programs."

"Central banks in most countries," the report states, "designate certain sectors of the economy that are to receive favorable treatment from the central bank. In some cases this is done to aid preferentially particular sectors and in some cases this is done to offset the uneven impacts of private money markets."

In other words, such banks to one extent or another are used to promote social and economic goals. "This report clears up the mass of misconceptions about the utilization of monetary policy to meet basic economic needs," Patman said.

"For years," he continued, "we have heard officials of the Federal Reserve System claim that allocation of credit by a central bank is both impractical and unworkable."

Other central banks, said Patman in releasing the report, successfully allocate credit and are an integral part of economic planning. But to the FRS, he suggested, this only means that all the others are out of step.

Prof. Lester Thurow, who headed the study, declines to make any judgements based on the strictly factual report, but he does agree that all 11 central banks studied involve themselves more directly in socio-economic issues.

"Our purpose was not to make a judgement as to what the Federal Reserve should do," he said. "It was to open up the issues to discussions, to make legitimate those questions the Federal Reserve has felt were not legitimate."

The Children's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

Childhood, in retrospect, is an idyllic period. But in the living, it is a time of problems and troubles much like those which face adults. Personality clashes, poverty, and even death must be met. Recently, writers of children's books have shown a keen awareness of the dilemmas of youth. They write with understanding and warmth about real-life situations.

Jean Little's "Take Wing" is a good example. Its theme is the fragile nature of friendship. Laurel, responsible beyond her years, worries over her small brother, James is "not quite right," though everyone avoids saying so. Preoccupation with James' care prevents Laurel from making friends of her own.

School Aid Hike Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says federal school aid would increase from $2.9 billion to $5.1 billion under the general revenue sharing plan proposed by the President.

Officials say some $2 billion of the increase would be the portion of the proposed $5 billion general revenue-sharing pool which states and local governments would use mainly for public school aid. The remaining $200 million would be new money.

As outlined by administration education officials Tuesday, the states would share the $5.1 billion on the basis of population alone. The biggest states, therefore, would get the largest share. The money would be funneled through five broad categories of elementary and secondary education spending rather than the present 100 sometimes overlapping, special purpose aid programs. The five categories would be compensatory, impact aid to districts with large numbers of federal employees, vocational, handicapped, and equipment and facilities.

Hamilton County Jail 'Closed'

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Hamilton County Jail, jammed with 362 prisoners, began limiting Wednesday the number of defendants it will house.

Sheriff Dan Tehan sent out a bulletin Tuesday saying that "as of Jan. 27, 1971, the county jail will accept no more prisoners until further notice." Assistant warden William Parsons said that exceptions will be persons indicted or bound to a grand jury.

The jail, located on the top floor of the six-story Hamilton County Courthouse Building, was constructed in 1917 to house about 150 inmates.

Houseboating has grown faster than any other form of warm weather vacationing with the possible exception of camping, claims the National Geographic Society. The convenient water-borne residences cruise almost every major river and canal in the United States.

Mills Trial Continues

MCAHARTHUR, Ohio (AP) — Deputy Dave Wilbur, who was wounded when Vinton County Sheriff Harold Steele was shot to death last August, was to be the final prosecution witness today in the first-degree murder trial of Oliver Mills.

Mills, 61, is expected to take the witness stand in his own behalf after the defense begins presenting its case.

Mills is accused of killing Steele when the sheriff went to the Mills home to try to serve a warrant involving a power company's easement rights.

Wednesday a Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. official told of being ordered off the Mills property at gunpoint in September 1969.

Paul Hough said he and Steele had gone to the home to discuss the easement rights with Mills, but Mills produced a shotgun and ordered them to leave.

Armco Workers All Called Back

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — All 342 employees laid off last Nov. 7 at Armco Steel Corp. plants here and in Hamilton are now back on the job.

James Townsley, manager of the Middletown plant, said Wednesday that the final 19 employees laid off were recalled to work Wednesday.

The November layoffs, the first major ones since 1968, stemmed from inventories stock piled during the General Motors Corp. strike, Armco officials said.

Ex-POW Tells Of Torture During Viet Imprisonment

NEW YORK (AP) — A former American prisoner of war in North Vietnam says Hanoi-released films depicting life in POW camps bear no relation to the torture treatment he had to undergo.

Maj. James Low, who was shot down over North Vietnam in December 1967 and released the following August, commented Tuesday in a television interview on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite.

He described a torture in which his captors used a metal bar about 18 inches long and one inch in diameter.

"They put this in my mouth and a guy... put his knee in my back and pulled this thing back against... as far back as he could and the pain is excruciating. I never felt a pain worse than that," he said.

"They kept asking me questions and their all of a sudden they got up and pushed me down and took the bar out. They left for maybe another hour or so... two hours. And then they came back again and the same treatment started again.

"Asking me what target, what target... they had a big map out on the table and they went through the handcuff and the routine and this time they really pulled this bar back inside. Blood gushed out from my ear... ruptured something in there.

Gilligan Says More Spending, Taxes Needed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio is "at the bottom of the heap" in solving social problems, Gov. John J. Gilligan told the Ohio Pastors Convention Wednesday.

"Here in Ohio our situation is dismal," Gilligan said, referring to poverty, disease, hunger and crime.

The governor said cures to these problems will result in "staggering costs," but added, "There is no cheap way out."

"The program I propose will be expensive," Gilligan said. "Their cost will run into millions and millions of dollars, and all of us will pay for them."

"This treatment went on and off for about well, six or seven days. Of course, whenever they were torturing me with this bar and what have you, I screamed because it really was excruciating. It seemed like when they'd leave me they'd go somewhere else and I could hear a person next door screaming, too. The same treatment. I presume it was my partner but I don't know for sure," he said.

Low, now operations officer at McCoy Air Force Base, Fla., was asked if there was any similarity between his treatment at the hands of the North Vietnamese and that shown in Christmas films of American POWs released by Hanoi.

"None at all," he said. "We had no group activity whatsoever. It was a camp regulation that you would not communicate with anyone else and if you did you were punished. And their punishment is not like ours. It's closer to torture when they punish you."

Miss Marilyn Louise Hay Weds Paul Herman Pence

MRS. PAUL HERMAN PENCE

Miss Marilyn Louise Hay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Hay of Route 1, Lockbourne, was wed to Mr. Paul Herman Pence in St. Matthew Lutheran Church of Lockbourne 2:30 p.m. Dec. 27. Mr. Pence is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pence Jr. of Columbus.

Rev. Donald Beutel and Rev. Werner Stuck performed the double ring ceremony before the altar adorned with arrangements of white daisies, gladioli and hot-pink carnations. On each side of the altar stood brass candelabra decorated with cascades of greenery and red velvet bows. The pews were marked with Christmas foliage and white satin ribbon, and the windowsills held red poinsettias and greenery. The choir rail was decorated with greenery and white diamond dusted bells.

A program of nuptial selections preceded the ceremony by Mrs. Gary Thorp, organist and Mrs. David Hill, vocalist, both of Ashville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was in a full length gown of white satin fashioned in the A-line empire silhouette. Re-embroidered chantilly lace created the bodice and was repeated on the skirt and detachable chapel train. The plateau designed headpiece of matching lace held an elbow length imported silk illusion veil. The bride wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the groom. She carried her Bible with the handkerchief her mother carried at her wedding tucked inside. Atop the Bible was a cascade arrangement of white sweetheart roses and carnations accented by gold trim. Cascading pearl streamers hung from the bouquet.

Miss Laura Norris, foster sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Ronald Youmkin, Route 1, Lockbourne and Miss Carol Fridley, Canal Winchester, cousins of the bride, and Mrs. Rodney Kissell, McConnelsville, sister of the bridegroom. They were attired in red velvet floor length gowns fashioned in the empire silhouette. Embroidered flowers encircled the necklines and was repeated at the cuffs of the bishop sleeves. Matching Juliet bonnets completed their ensembles. They carried flat baskets filled with hot-pink carnations accented with pink balls, holly and Christmas foliage.

were Mr. Walter Kuhlwein, cousin of the bride, Route 1, Ashville; Mr. Richard Gaib, Canal Winchester and Mr. Rodney Kissell, brother-in-law of the groom, McConnelsville.

Mr. Hay selected for her daughter's wedding a silk shantung mint green coat-dress ensemble with the waistline of alencon lace and matching accessories. Mrs. Pence wore a dark green silk shantung dress with a beaded neckline. Both mothers corsages were of pink carnations and sweetheart roses.

A reception in the social rooms of the church immediately followed the ceremony. The four-tiered cake, topped with pink sweetheart roses and white daisies, was flanked with hurricane candelabra and arrangements of hot pink carnations and white daisies.

Hostesses were Miss Sandy Stover, Columbus, who presided at the guest book; Mrs. Walter Kuhlwein, Ashville; Mrs. LeRoy Kuhlwein, aunt of the bride, Columbus; Mrs. David Davis, Hilliard and Miss Karen Goldsberry, Cincinnati.

For a wedding trip to Miami, Fla., the bride changed to a white wool suit with navy trim and black patent accessories. She wore the corsage from her bride's bouquet. The couple now resides at 2633 G. Petzinger Road, Columbus.

The new Mrs. Pence is a graduate of Teays Valley High School. She attended Ohio University and was employed by Scioto Downs, Inc. as a secretary-receptionist.

Mr. Pence, a graduate of Ohio State University, is engaged in farming.

Church Groups Combine In Valentine Project

MUSHROOMING PROJECT — In an effort to teach children concern for others Mrs. Richard Black, shown on the right, found herself with 11 churches involved in making valentines for patients at Orient State Institute. Others shown working with her from left to right are Pastor Robert Michelfelder, Mrs. Edward Grigg and Mrs. Lawrence Martindale.

What began as a local Sunday School project at First English Lutheran Church in Ashville, has developed into a county-wide inner-church effort. Mrs. Richard Black, Sunday School Superintendent at First English Church, wanted to encourage the children of the church to be concerned about others. The group has undertaken the making of valentines for the 2,900 patients at Orient State Institute. Ten other churches in the county are assisting.

Churches with representatives participating are First English Lutheran, Ashville, Pastor Robert Michelfelder and Mrs. Richard Black; Zion United Methodist, Ashville, Steve Cook; First Baptist, Ashville, Mrs. George Mesner; Village United Methodist, Ashville, Lowell Rader; South Bloomfield United Methodist, Pastor R. L. Chidsley; Scioto Chapel United Methodist, Robtown, Mrs. Eloise Fee; Commercial Point United Methodist, Pastor and Mrs. Carl Wetherall; Darbyville Church of the Nazarene, Pastor and Mrs. Lawrence Martindale; Trinity Lutheran, Circleville, Mrs. Dale Edwards; First Presbyterian, Circleville, Mrs. R. C. Downey and Concord United Methodist, K. Roger Hill.

Valentines will be made and taken to First English Lutheran Church, Ashville, Sunday, Feb. 7. The High School Luther League of First English will distribute them under the direction of Chaplain Konkright to the individual cottages at the Institute on Sunday, Feb. 14. Any person wishing to accompany the group to Orient should contact Pastor Robert Michelfelder or Mrs. Richard Black.

Legion Unit Prepares For Conference

Mrs. Charles Moss, president, presided over the Monday evening business session when Unit 134, American Legion Auxiliary met in the Post Home. Acting chaplain, Mrs. Robert Stephens, opened the meeting with prayer. A note was read thanking the past presidents for their contributions to the Past President's Parley. This fund is used for items for women veterans in Miller Cottage at Dayton Veterans Hospital and nursing scholarships. Mrs. Bess Simson and Mrs. Robert Stephens were presented cards by the Unit president certifying their membership by their contribution. A report on the Christmas contribution by the Unit to the Xenia Soldiers and Sailors Orphans Home was heard.

Mrs. Forrest Hoffman, Americanism chairman, reported confirmation from Dept. Headquarters that two Circleville High School and one Logan Elm Junior class girls will be eligible to attend Buckeye Girls State at Capital University, Columbus in June. Additional information will be released to the public soon.

Mrs. MacDonald Schumm reported sending four get-well cards and told of the monthly card party project. Mrs. Bess Simson, veterans affairs and rehabilitation chairman, reported serving 36 patients of Ward 211 C Chillicothe Veterans Hospital, pie, ice cream and punch during the January visit.

The Unit voted to purchase new drapes for the Legion Home's meeting room.

The 46 annual Mid-Winter Conference of Ohio Units will be held Jan. 29-30 at the Neil House Motor Hotel in Columbus. The kick-off will be a general assembly at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Mrs. Arthur F. Hrabak, department president will open the Saturday meeting at 9 a.m. with a procession of dignitaries. 5:30 p.m. a reception honoring the national president, Mrs. Charles C. PROGRAM — Introducing the speakers for the Tuesday evening meeting of Circleville Branch of AAUW, shown on the left is Mrs. Robert Milburn. Reviewing books were Mrs. Clark Will and Wallace Higgins.

Circleville Branch of the American Assn. of University Women met Tuesday evening at the Presbyterian Church with Mrs. Dale C. Edwards, president, presiding. Several new members and guests were present.

Mrs. Edwards announced the nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Carl Helffingler, chairman; Mrs. Richard Fisher, Miss Sheryl Wood, Mrs. J. L. Chilcote and Mrs. M. A. Greenwood. She also appointed Mrs. Thomas Dickerhofe to be in charge of the master list for the Lillian Doherty Memorial Lecture held in April.

The program for the evening, introduced by Mrs. Robert Milburn, chairman of the general program committee, "American Foreign Policy — Dilemmas And Realities Of Power," comprised two book reviews. The first was "The Analysis of International Relations" by Carl W. Deutsch. Mrs. Clark Will gave a short resume of this primer which she said is helpful in making clear what our nation must know about other nations as well as what the government must know about its own people in order to be successful in both its foreign and its domestic problems.

Wallace Higgins was the second speaker, reviewing in depth J. William Fulbright's meeting with a prayer for Peace. Mrs. Moss and Mrs. Schumm invited members to the refreshment table.

The evening ended with a social hour sponsored by the hostess committee: Mrs. Dennis Blecha, Mrs. Earl Petz, Miss Sharon Ryan, Mrs. Harold Whitfield, Mrs. William Robertson, Mrs. William Lyle, Mrs. Frank Susa, Mrs. Earl Dean and Mrs. Thomas Dickerhofe.

MRS. PAUL HERMAN PENCE

Miss Marilyn Louise Hay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Hay of Route 1, Lockbourne, was wed to Mr. Paul Herman Pence in St. Matthew Lutheran Church of Lockbourne 2:30 p.m. Dec. 27. Mr. Pence is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pence Jr. of Columbus.

Rev. Donald Beutel and Rev. Werner Stuck performed the double ring ceremony before the altar adorned with arrangements of white daisies, gladioli and hot-pink carnations. On each side of the altar stood brass candelabra decorated with cascades of greenery and red velvet bows. The pews were marked with Christmas foliage and white satin ribbon, and the windowsills held red poinsettias and greenery. The choir rail was decorated with greenery and white diamond dusted bells.

A program of nuptial selections preceded the ceremony by Mrs. Gary Thorp, organist and Mrs. David Hill, vocalist, both of Ashville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was in a full length gown of white satin fashioned in the A-line empire silhouette. Rembrided chantilly lace created the bodice and was repeated on the skirt and detachable chapel train. The plateau designed headpiece of matching lace held an elbow length imported silk illusion veil. The bride wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the groom. book "The Arrogance of Power," written in 1966. This book deals with some of the significant features of our foreign policy at that time in a manner comprehensible to the average reader. Fulbright has three fundamental ideas the truth of which he wishes to establish. First — the true patriot examines what his country is trying to do and criticizes those actions which he believes to be in error. Second — Americans tend to equate all revolutions with Communism, a weakness which is not only misguided but harmful to foreign relations in general. Third — America should be trying to reconcile the various factions in a hostile world rather than to increase tensions and hostilities.

Mr. Higgins concluded his remarks by saying, "While I might disagree with some of the Senator's ideas, I can't help admiring his effort to encourage moderation and sanity in foreign policy. It looks at times, however, as if extremism and madness might ultimately prevail." Our hope perhaps lies in learning to think as did such statesmen as Lincoln and Adlai Stevenson whose points of view were sensible, generous, good-natured and judicious.

The evening ended with a social hour sponsored by the hostess committee: Mrs. Dennis Blecha, Mrs. Earl Petz, Miss Sharon Ryan, Mrs. Harold Whitfield, Mrs. William Robertson, Mrs. William Lyle, Mrs. Frank Susa, Mrs. Earl Dean and Mrs. Thomas Dickerhofe.

State Income Tax Urged By Cleveland Professors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The best source of new revenue for Ohio would be a personal income tax, two economists told the Citizens Task Force on Tax Reform Wednesday.

Eric A. Welf Jr. and John F. Burke Jr., both professors at Cleveland State University, said Ohio could not meet the demands for increased spending simply by tinkering with the present tax structure.

Welf and Burke, who made a study of Ohio's tax structure two years ago, said Ohio would have to spend between $1.4 million and $1.9 million more in the next fiscal year to bring the amount it spends per citizen up to the national average.

And the per-citizen gap could rise to more than $200 million in fiscal 1973 and $300 million in fiscal 1974, they said.

But the professors did not explain why they based their averages on total expenditures of other states.

Former Gov. James A. Rhodes disputed their findings some time ago, contending that Ohio operated programs more economically than other states.

Another witness told the task force Wednesday a school district that spends less than another is not necessarily doing less for education.

"Improvement does not always mean more money," said Joseph L. Anthony of Yellow Springs, a teacher and a member of the local school board's five-member lobbying group.

"It may be that with a more effective school we can experience the same learning in three years that now takes four."

Anthony also said education should be freed from the necessity of operating "at the whims of voters who are stamped by inflation, deflation, unemployment and the times" to vote according to their pocketbooks.

Ants Loafers, Husband-Wife Scientists Say

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "Ants aren't all they are reported to be," say Drs. George and Jeanette Wheeler.

The husband-wife researchers have devoted years to studying the creatures, heroes of fables on industriousness.

"Whenever we view an anthill we get the impression of a tremendous amount of activity, but that is merely because there are so many ants and they all look alike," the Wheelers concluded.

"The individual ants spend a great deal of time just loafing. And, worse than that, the worker ants, who are all females, spend a lot of time primping."

Marietta Bridge Deterioration Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Deterioration of the Putnam Street Bridge over the Muskingum River in Marietta was the subject of a conference here today between state and local officials.

Marietta Mayor John Burnworth and Washington County officials asked for the meeting with Highway Director J. Philip Richley and Gov. John J. Gilligan to see what state aid is available either to repair or replace the bridge.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWERY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Opening Wednesday night's CBS special on growing pains, "Kids—33 Things to Know About Health, Sex and Growing Up," narrator Charles Kuralt said the program was aimed at the audience "between Sesame Street and Laugh-In."

The unusual hour was a useful illustrated lecture for the tortured teens—and their parents. It covered, in question and answer form, matters that ranged from learning to live with acne bumps—"You'll grow out of it"—to a frank description of venereal disease symptoms.

The visual part consisted primarily of Atlanta high school students, most of the time showing activities related to the subject under discussion. Seven physicians, all specialists, took turns answering questions. They covered diets and dieting; the benefits of orthodontia, contact lenses and plastic surgery; the dangers of drug use; the perils inherent in "high velocity and contact sports."

In a segment dealing with sex, the youngsters heard one physician approve going steady if it did not shut out other social contacts. Another said, "Petting seems one of the most reasonable and sensible ways to satisfy the normal sex drive."

The hour was brisk and business-like, and the experts leveled in their answers. None talked down to his audience. Even though the material was not ideally fitted to the visual medium, it held the serious viewer's interest.

NBC came along later with a provocative report on the annual harvest of the crop of the Pribilof Islands off Alaska: the clubbing and skinning of fur seals. It was a disturbing and thought-provoking look at a 200-year-old business. "Man's Thumb on Nature's Balance" permitted Aleut seal hunters as well as humane society officials to express their opinions.

The hour was concerned primarily with showing that conservation is more complicated

Mansfield Speaks Cautiously On President's Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaking for the Democrats on Capitol Hill, Sen. Mike Mansfield said nothing particularly good nor bad about President Nixon's legislative program in a nationally televised "conversation with the Senate Majority Leader."

The Montana Senator said Nixon's major proposals deserve congressional attention—but withheld specific endorsements until the bills are introduced.

Mansfield was interviewed for 45 minutes Tuesday by four broadcast journalists. Although he denied any intention of giving a Democratic response to Nixon's State of the Union address, he was questioned on major portions of the President's speech.

Blackbird Damage To Corn Disclosed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A survey by the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife shows blackbirds caused $1.1 million damage to Ohio's cornfields in 1970.

As usual, the sampling indicated the Lake Erie region had the greatest monetary loss, with individual fields suffering as much as 33 per cent loss. Damage ranged from .02 per cent in Perry County to 1.88 per cent in Ottawa County.

Mansfield agreed it may be wise to consolidate some federal departments, as recommended by President Nixon.

"This is a step in the right direction," he said. "We are top-heavy in federal bureaus and agencies."

Mansfield noted strong opposition to Nixon's revenue-sharing proposal, under which states would get federal funds with no strings.

Asked about a move to junk the seniority system, under which congressional committee chairmen are elected on a basis of length of service, Mansfield said the system has worked remarkably well but he would support an age limit for senators.

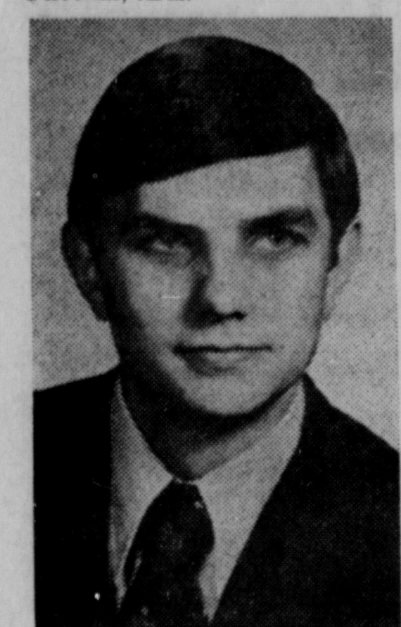

Mansfield voiced doubt Congress will vote to cut off funds for use in Indochina in fear of U.S. troops there would be jeopardized.

But he declared Nixon should set a definite timetable for removal of all U.S. troops from Indochina and withdraw about half of the American troops in Europe.

2 Men Added To O-I Plant Management

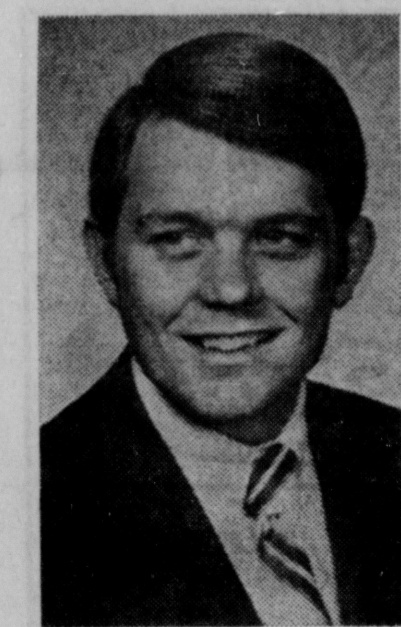

The local Owens-Illinois box plant reports the addition of two new personnel to its management staff, Larry W. Joiner and William S. Munn.

Joiner is a new industrial relations trainee in the plant personnel department. He came to Owens-Illinois from the U.S. Air Force where he was Director of Military Personnel at Luke Air Force Base, Phoenix, Ariz.

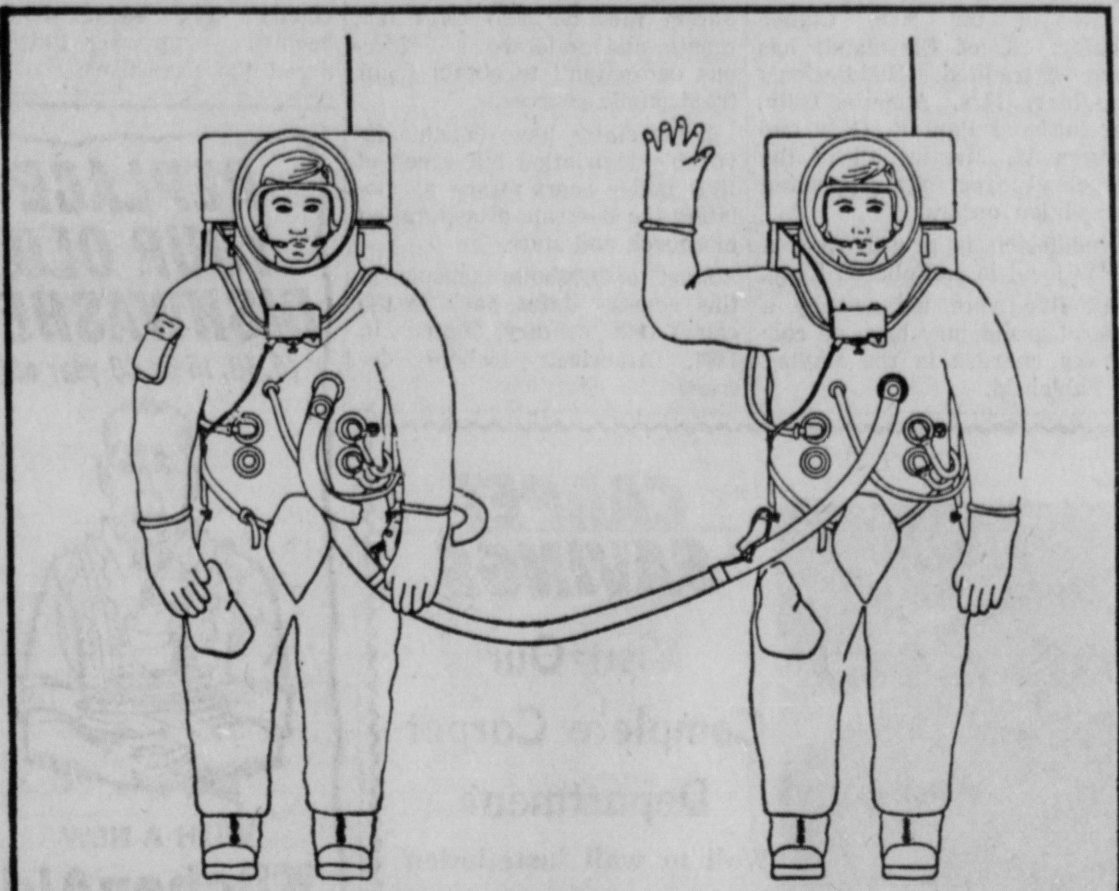

LARRY W. JOINER

Joiner is a 1966 graduate of Mississippi State University with graduate studies both at M.S.U. and Phoenix College. He resides at 355 Clark Drive with his wife, Kathy, who is a native of Findlay.

WILLIAM S. MUNN

Munn is a new sales management trainee in the plant sales department. He came to Owens-Illinois from Central Michigan University where he was an instructor in business studies. Munn is a 1967 graduate of Miami University, Oxford and he completed the requirements for the MBA degree at Michigan State University in 1969. He resides with his wife, Mary Lynn, in Columbus.

ASTRONAUTS' BUDDY SYSTEM—Apollo 14 astronauts Alan Shepard and Ed Mitchell will carry a buddy system on their two-wheeled cart during their second and longest Moonwalk, scheduled for Feb. 6. If the water cooling system of one of the backpacks fails, a connecting line (illustrated) could feed cooling water from the other lifeback to the man in trouble long enough to permit them to return safely to their Moon landing craft.

State Income Tax Urged By Cleveland Professors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The best source of new revenue for Ohio would be a personal income tax, two economists told the Citizens Task Force on Tax Reform Wednesday.

Eric A. Welf Jr. and John F. Burke Jr., both professors at Cleveland State University, said Ohio could not meet the demands for increased spending simply by tinkering with the present tax structure.

Welf and Burke, who made a study of Ohio's tax structure two years ago, said Ohio would have to spend between $1.4 million and $1.9 million more in the next fiscal year to bring the amount it spends per citizen up to the national average.

And the per-citizen gap could rise to more than $200 million in fiscal 1973 and $300 million in fiscal 1974, they said.

But the professors did not explain why they based their averages on total expenditures of other states.

Former Gov. James A. Rhodes disputed their findings some time ago, contending that Ohio operated programs more economically than other states.

Another witness told the task force Wednesday a school district that spends less than another is not necessarily doing less for education.

"Improvement does not always mean more money," said Joseph L. Anthony of Yellow Springs, a teacher and a member of the local school board's five-member lobbying group.

"It may be that with a more effective school we can experience the same learning in three years that now takes four."

Anthony also said education should be freed from the necessity of operating "at the whims of voters who are stampeded by inflation, deflation, unemployment and 'the times' to vote according to their pocketbooks."

Ants Loafers, Husband-Wife Scientists Say

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "Ants aren't all they are reported to be," say Drs. George and Jeanette Wheeler.

The husband-wife researchers have devoted years to studying the creatures, heroes of fables on industriousness.

"Whenever we view an anthill we get the impression of a tremendous amount of activity, but that is merely because there are so many ants and they all look alike," the Wheelers concluded.

"The individual ants spend a great deal of time just loafing. And, worse than that, the worker ants, who are all females, spend a lot of time primping."

Marietta Bridge Deterioration Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Deterioration of the Putnam Street Bridge over the Muskingum River in Marietta was the subject of a conference here today between state and local officials.

Marietta Mayor John Burnworth and Washington County officials asked for the meeting with Highway Director J. Phillip Richley and Gov. John J. Gilligan to see what state aid is available either to repair or replace the bridge.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWERY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Opening Wednesday night's CBS special on growing pains, "Kids—33 Things to Know About Health, Sex and Growing Up," narrator Charles Kuralt said the program was aimed at the audience "between Sesame Street and Laugh-In."

The unusual hour was a useful illustrated lecture for the tortured teens—and their parents. It covered, in question and answer form, matters that ranged from learning to live with acne bumps—"You'll grow out of it"—to a frank description of venereal disease symptoms.

The visual part consisted primarily of Atlanta high school students, most of the time showing activities related to the subject under discussion. Seven physicians, all specialists, took turns answering questions. They covered diets and dieting; the benefits of orthodontia; contact lenses and plastic surgery; the dangers of drug use; the perils inherent in "high velocity and contact sports."

In a segment dealing with sex, the youngsters heard one physician approve going steady if it did not shut out other social contacts. Another said, "Petting seems one of the most reasonable and sensible ways to satisfy the normal sex drive."

The hour was brisk and business-like, and the experts leveled in their answers. None talked down to his audience. Even though the material was not ideally fitted to the visual medium, it held the serious viewer's interest.

NBC came along later with a provocative report on the annual harvest of the crop of the Pribilof Islands off Alaska: the clubbing and skinning of fur seals. It was a disturbing and thought-provoking look at a 200-year-old business. "Man's Thumb on Nature's Balance" permitted Aleut seal hunters as well as humane society officials to express their opinions.

The hour was concerned primarily with showing that conservation is more complicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaking for the Democrats on Capitol Hill, Sen. Mike Mansfield said nothing particularly good nor bad about President Nixon's legislative program in a nationally televised "conversation" with the Senate Majority Leader.

The Montana Senator said Nixon's major proposals deserve congressional attention—but withheld specific endorsements until the bills are introduced.

Mansfield was interviewed for 45 minutes Tuesday by four broadcast journalists. Although he denied any intention of giving a Democratic response to Nixon's State of the Union address, he was questioned on major portions of the President's speech.

The format approximated one used by Nixon earlier this month when he was interviewed for an hour on television and radio.

Mansfield agreed it may be wise to consolidate some federal departments, as recommended by President Nixon.

"This is a step in the right direction," he said. "We are top-heavy in federal bureaus and agencies."

Mansfield noted strong opposition to Nixon's revenue-sharing proposal, under which states would get federal funds with no strings.

Asked about a move to junk the seniority system, under which congressional committee chairmen are elected on a basis of length of service, Mansfield said the system has worked remarkably well but he would support an age limit for senators.

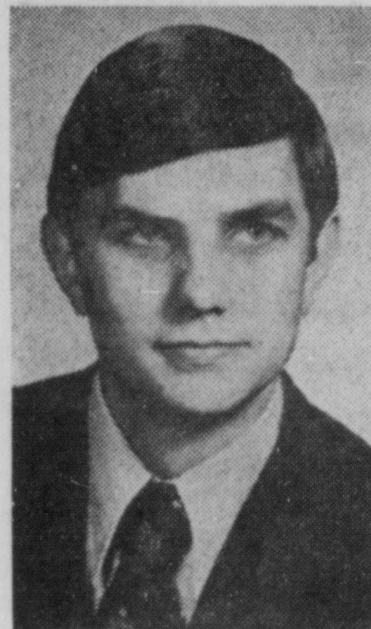

Mansfield voiced doubt Congress will vote to cut off funds for use in Indochina in fear of U.S. troops there would be jeopardized.

But he declared Nixon should set a definite timetable for removal of all U.S. troops from Indochina and withdraw about half of the American troops in Europe.

Black Solons Form Own Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their ranks growing and infused with a new spirit of activism, the 12 black members of the House have organized their own committee to represent the nation's 25 million blacks.

They call it the Black Caucus, and they hope by concerted action to make heard the voices of their constituents in the ghettos of Watts, Harlem, Bedford-Stuyvesant, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Cleveland and Philadelphia.

"We're all dealing with the same problems," says Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., "and we can do a better job if we work as a group rather than as individuals."

Hawkins was named vice chairman at the caucus organizing session Wednesday. Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich., a 16-year veteran of the House, was named chairman, and Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., a freshman, was elected secretary.

The other caucus members are Reps. Robert N.C. Nix, D-Pa.; John Conyers, D-Mich.; Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y.; Louis Stokes, D-Ohio; William Clay, D-Mo.; George Collins, D-Ill.; Ralph H. Metcalfe, D-Ill.; Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif.; and Parren J. Mitchell, Md.

The new militancy among the blacks actually began in the last Congress with arrival of Clay and Stokes. They stirred up the older blacks, who had generally operated alone, and the caucus was organized on an informal basis.

With the seating of five more black members in the 92 Congress last week, there was a need for a more effective organization and one was established Wednesday, complete with rules, subcommittees and a weekly meeting date.

The caucus staked out areas of concern to blacks, such as civil rights and law enforcement, housing, education and job training, and assigned each member to explore one of them and report to the caucus any action that might be taken.

The caucus also decided to require a two-thirds vote for committing it to a position or a course of action, a step made necessary by the wide range of activism among the members.

Caucus actions to date have included a boycott of President Nixon's State of the Union address and demand for free television time for an address of their own on the grounds Nixon ignored problems of blacks.

It was also a caucus decision to seek a seat on the House Appropriations Committee for Stokes, an assignment he got Wednesday, making him the first black to serve on that important panel.

With 12 votes the caucus is not yet strong enough to become a factor in voting on the House floor, but its members feel that will come with time. They expect to gain three or more seats in the 1972 elections and look forward to steady increases until there are 35 or 40 black members in the House.

"A lot of them should be from the South," said Hawkins, "and that should really turn things around."

Postal Strike 'Not Funny' In Britain

LONDON (AP) — The British postal strike went into its ninth day today and, as one newspaper put it, "it's not so funny any longer."

Last week the absence of mail meant chiefly a welcome absence of bills for most Britons. "I've never woken up to so many problem-free mornings," said one suburbanite. "For me, this can go on forever."

But as the postal workers continue their strike for higher pay and the Post Office shows no sign of giving ground, the problems are beginning to loom.

Mail order companies are thinking of laying off employees. Small businesses are threatened with bankruptcy. Greeting card manufacturers and sellers are feeling the pinch. Newspapers already in bad shape are losing even more. The operators of football pools are worried. Automatic telephone equipment, which services 95 per cent of the system, is dangerously overloaded.

The Post Office announced Wednesday that it had lost nearly $10 million in revenue. The Daily Telegraph warned that "continuance of the strike can only ... endanger uneconomic postal services" and lead to widespread layoffs of persons whose jobs are becoming superfluous.

The 230,000 strikers are demanding a 15 per cent increase in basic pay that ranges from $36 to $66 a week. The Post Office says it can't afford more than 8 per cent, and the Conservative government says any more than that would be unacceptably inflationary.

Parcel Post Package Scares Cincy Workers

CINCINNATI (AP) — A vibration in a parcel post package from a mining company in Kentucky threw a scare into employees at the U. S. Post Office Annex here Wednesday.

Arthur Bernzott, assistant director of operations for the annex, said that it was feared the package might contain explosives and the Cincinnati Fire Department's Bomb Disposal Unit was summoned.

The package was taken to the fire department's high-intensity building where it was carefully opened. Firemen found no explosives but pure air detectors which are used in mines. A switch on one had accidentally been turned on.

Catholic Schools In Grip Of Financial Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Roman Catholic school system is in the grips of a financial crisis that has forced nearly 1,400 schools to close or consolidate in the last five years and reduced enrollments by a million pupils. The National Catholic Education Association, which made these figures available, also said reports from 150 dioceses indicate that anticipated revenues last school year fell $267 million short of the anticipated $1.4 billion needed.

Since 1965-66, when the church operated 13,292 schools, 1,365 have closed or consolidated, NCEA reported. Enrollment, meanwhile, dropped from about 5.5 million to about 4.5 million.

High schools are generally in better shape financially since about two-thirds of their income is tuition and fees. In contrast, parishes subsidize two-thirds of the cost of elementary schools.

Impact of the cutbacks is first felt by public school districts, most of which already are hard pressed financially, and eventually by the taxpayers. Each parochial school student shifted to Public Schools costs taxpayers $800 a year.

There seems little likelihood that the Catholic church will abandon its school system, second in size only to the public schools, but church spokesmen agree that many more parish schools will close unless financial relief is found.

Forty bishops from across the nation met for two days last month and endorsed a "vigorous campaign" to obtain funds from public sources.

Some states have enacted favorable legislation but much of it is under court attack as violating the doctrine of separation of church and state.

Start of Catholic schools in this country dates back to the early 19th century. Later, in 1884, American bishops decreed:

"That near every church a parish school, where one does not yet exist, is to be built and maintained in perpetuum within two years of the promulgation of this council, unless the bishop should decide that because of serious difficulties a delay may be granted."

This decree was never realized, the NCEA says, but could partly be responsible for the present-day structure of the parochial schools whereby each parish is autonomous and responsible for financing and administering the parish schools.

Only last year did the church begin gathering national figures on Catholic schools relating to enrollments, faculty, finance, teacher-pupil ratio, degree level of faculty and location of schools.

Factors that led to the present financial crisis, Rev. C. Albert Koob, NCEA president, said, include changing attitudes of parents, shifting populations, rising costs, lack of support by Catholics, failure to bring more young women into the religious orders, the high cost of lay teachers and the demand for better quality education.

Even in the present crisis, Koob sees "positive changes taking place." He gave as examples the mergers of schools into inter-parochial operations, establishment of lay catholic school boards with a voice in the management of schools and total diocesan planning.

But, he concludes: "It has reached the panic stage and schools are managing to hold on in the hope of relief from public sources."

Commissioners Out Of Jail Pending Appeal

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — The three Trumbull County commissioners were free on $300 bond each today after being jailed for five hours Wednesday for not raising the pay of Probate Judge Reed S. Battin's clerical staff.

Judge Battin sentenced commissioners Gary J. Thompson, Lamar A. Young and John F. McCloskey to jail for three days on contempt of court charges and fined them $300 each.

The commissioners were freed after 11th District Court of Appeals Judge George M. Jones signed an order staying execution of the fines and jail sentences pending appeal.

Judge Battin had ordered pay raises of $25 a month for his staff Jan. 4. The commissioners said they refused because the county's 1971 budget had not been drawn up when Battin ordered the pay hikes.

Huddleston Wins Delay On Hearings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A hearing to extradite Silous Huddleston to Pennsylvania to stand trial for the shooting deaths of United Mine Workers leader Joseph A. Yablonski, his wife and daughter was continued Wednesday to Feb. 9.

Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Gorman granted the continuance so that George Pappas of Akron, attorney for 61-year-old Huddleston, could file for a writ of habeas corpus claiming Huddleston is not a suspect.

Huddleston is one of five persons indicted in Pennsylvania in the slayings Dec. 31, 1969, in the Yablonskis' Clarksville, Pa., home.

One of the five, Claude Vealey, 26, of Cleveland, has been extradited. Huddleston's daughter, Mrs. Annette Gilly, her husband Paul E. Gilly and Aubran W. Martin, all of the Cleveland area, are appealing extradition orders.

Huddleston is president of a UMW local in LaFollette, Tenn.

All five were indicted by a federal grand jury here on conspiracy charges in the slaying of Yablonski.

enrollments by a million pupils.

The National Catholic Education Association, which made these figures available, also said reports from 150 dioceses indicate that anticipated revenues last school year fell $267 million short of the anticipated $1.4 billion needed.

Since 1965-66, when the church operated 13,292 schools, 1,365 have closed or consolidated, NCEA reported. Enrollment, meanwhile, dropped from about 5.5 million to about 4.5 million.

High schools are generally in better shape financially since about two-thirds of their income is tuition and fees. In contrast, parishes subsidize two-thirds of the cost of elementary schools.

Impact of the cutbacks is first felt by public school districts, most of which already are hard pressed financially, and eventually by the taxpayers. Each parochial school student shifted to Public Schools costs taxpayers $800 a year.

There seems little likelihood that the Catholic church will abandon its school system, second in size only to the public schools, but church spokesmen agree that many more parish schools will close unless financial relief is found.

Forty bishops from across the nation met for two days last month and endorsed a "vigorous campaign" to obtain funds from public sources.

Some states have enacted favorable legislation but much of it is under court attack as violating the doctrine of separation of church and state.

Start of Catholic schools in this country dates back to the early 19th century. Later, in 1884, American bishops decreed:

"That near every church a parish school, where one does not yet exist, is to be built and maintained in perpetuum within two years of the promulgation of this council, unless the bishop should decide that because of serious difficulties a delay may be granted."

This decree was never realized, the NCEA says, but could partly be responsible for the present-day structure of the parochial schools whereby each parish is autonomous and responsible for financing and administering the parish schools.

Only last year did the church begin gathering national figures on Catholic schools relating to enrollments, faculty, finance, teacher-pupil ratio, degree level of faculty and location of schools.

Factors that led to the present financial crisis, Rev. C. Albert Koob, NCEA president, said, include changing attitudes of parents, shifting populations, rising costs, lack of support by Catholics, failure to bring more young women into the religious orders, the high cost of lay teachers and the demand for better quality education.

Even in the present crisis, Koob sees "positive changes taking place." He gave as examples the mergers of schools into inter-parochial operations, establishment of lay catholic school boards with a voice in the management of schools and total diocesan planning.

But, he concludes: "It has reached the panic stage and schools are managing to hold on in the hope of relief from public sources."

Tigers Tackle Lions In Crucial SCOL Tilt

It will be a battle to stay alive in the race for the South Central Ohio League title when the Washington C. H. Blue Lions Friday in a must win game for both squads.

The Tigers and Lions are both 4-2 in the SCOL and need a victory to keep pace with the league leading Wilmington Hurricane who carries a 5-1 record into the den of the Tigers of Greenfield McClain Friday night.

Seats will be at a premium Friday night when Circleville also honors the parents of the players. It will be come early or standing room only.

"This is a must game for us," Tiger Coach John Lawhorn commented. "Our guys know what has to be done and we feel they will do it."

WASHINGTON has been coming on strong and has looked impressive in the last two outings, coming up with wins over Wilmington and Miami Trace. The Lions have good size and scoring power. The defense has really shaped up and they are employing a 1-2-2-zone and man to man to good advantage.

The Blue Lions will get a starting lineup from guards Danny Mahoney, 5-foot-3, a good outside shooter who can drive; Jeff Pollock, 5-foot-11, good outside shooter; and Lonnie Wilson, 6-foot, a good passer with fine defensive movements.

The center post will be manned by Chris Essman, 6-foot-4, a strong rebounder with good movement. Bill Smith, 6-foot-2, consistent scorer who works well on the boards and All-SCOL Dave DeWeese, 6-foot-3, will be at the forwards.

Coach John Lawhorn will send Terry Morrison, 5-foot-3, and Tom Bowers, 5-foot-10, at the guards. John Hunt, 6-foot-2 will man the center post with Dave Truex, 5-foot-11, and Don Valentine, 5-foot-11, handling the forward slots.

The Tigers have good bench and will utilize it in the contest. Jim Neal, 5-foot-9; Mike Hamrick, 6-foot; Greg Roll, 5-foot-8; Kent Wolfe, 6-foot-1; and Dennis Jackson, 6-foot, give the Red and Black depth.

The Circleville coaching staff honored Mike Hamrick as defensive player of the week for his fine effort in the Greenfield contest and offensive honors went to John Hunt who had his best night of the year in the Greenfield fray.

Circleville's reserves will be out to improve their 5-7 mark when they tangle with the Lion cubs. The little Tigers are coming into the fray off two tough overtime contests. They dropped a heartbreaking two overtime period loss to Greenfield Friday but bounced back Saturday to down the Westfall reserves in a single overtime tilt.

Coach Sees Walnut Ridge Top Prep Basketball Team

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Although he won't say it directly, Salem Coach John Cabas leans toward Columbus Walnut Ridge as Ohio's No. 1 schoolboy basketball team this winter.

Salem took a 98-85 beating from Boardman, top-ranked in The Associated Press Class AAA poll, and a 97-73 pounding from Walnut Ridge, No. 2 in the big school ratings.

"The team that would control the boards would control the game," Cabas said of a possible tournament clash between Walnut Ridge and Boardman.

"Boardman's strength is that they're going to get twice as many shots as you. With three boys 6-7 in there, what else can you say," the Salem coach said.

"Walnut Ridge can shoot better as a unit and plays a lot tougher schedule than Boardman. Boardman hasn't been tested yet," Cabas said.

Cabas prides himself on arranging the toughest scholastic

Cavaliers Stop Portland In NBA Clash

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers are worrying less and winning more.

That was the explanation from two players Wednesday night after the Cavs trimmed Portland 118-110 for their second straight National Basketball Association victory and their fourth in their last seven games.

"Everyone is more relaxed," said Walt Wesley, whose 23 points—18 in the second half—were tops for Cleveland Wednesday night.

"The team no longer feels out of the game, no matter how far down we get."

"We've learned each other," said Dave Sorenson, "and don't have to worry about running the play patterns anymore."

For coach Bill Fitch the "most satisfying part about the victory" was that "we beat Portland and did it with J.J. (John Johnson) and Bingo (Bobby Smith) on the bench."

Portland—like Cleveland an expansion team—has beaten the Cavaliers five times in seven meetings so far this season.

The Cavaliers jumped off to a 26-18 lead Wednesday night but blew that lead as the Trailblazers went ahead late in the second quarter, 37-33.

Wesley came in the second period and sank some key baskets as the Cavaliers bounced back and went ahead for good at 42-40.

The Cavaliers widened the gap in the third and fourth quarters, going up 20 points with 7:31 left in the game when Bobby Washington hit on a lay-up to make the score 96-76.

Geoffrey Petrie sank 29 points for the Trailblazers, which prompted Fitch to quip: "Portland must carry two trainers: one to rub Petrie's arm down and the other for the rest of the team."

Patroits Eye Plunkett In Pro Grid Draft

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Boston's hard-pressed Patriots were expected to put rebuilding hopes ahead of financial hindrances today with the selection of Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett as the No. 1 prize in the National Football League draft.

Stanford's Plunkett, most prolific passer in major college history, and two other gifted quarterbacks, Archie Manning of Mississippi and Dan Pastorini of Santa Clara, loomed as the likely 1-2-3 picks in the draft, with Boston, New Orleans, and Houston on the receiving end in that order.

The Patriots, NFL tail-enders last season, have been besieged with trade offers from clubs coveting the No. 1 pick, and, presumably, the strapping 23-year-old Stanford ace.

But, despite a financial bind involving Joe Kapp, their high-salaried holdover quarterback, and a need for short-order help that a multiplayer trade might bring, they had made no move as the draft session's kickoff approached.

By drafting Plunkett, who holds the all-time major college records for passing yardage and total offense, Boston would have to take on another six-figure salary. Kapp has two years remaining on a three-year contract at about $130,000 per year. Plunkett's asking price has been set in the $250,000 area for a long-term pact.

The Year of the Quarterback in college football was expected to carry over into the draft, with Manning, Pastorini, Kansas State's Lynn Dickey and Duke's Leo Hart likely to follow Plunkett as first-round choices.

New Orleans, which traded quarterback Bill Kilmer to Washington recently, had the inside track to the strong-armed, mobile Manning. Houston reportedly had its sights set on Pastorini, who sparked in relative obscurity at Santa Clara as a passer, punter and placekicker.

Most of the 26 NFL clubs, who drafted in reverse order of their won-lost percentages last season with the exception of the Super Bowl finalists, were looking for the best talent available, regardless of position, in the early going. But at least half of them were in the market for quarterbacks.

With Philadelphia, Atlanta, Denver, and, possibly, Green Bay among quarterback-shoppers with high first-round choices, it was conceivable that Dickey, Hart, Scott Hunter of Alabama and All-American Joe Theismann of Notre Dame all could be tapped early.

Last year, quarterbacks Terry Bradshaw of Louisiana Tech and Mike Phipps of Purdue went to Pittsburgh and Cleveland, respectively, as the Nos. 1 and 3 picks in the draft. Quarterback Dennis Shaw, Buffalo's second-round pick, earned NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year honors.

Baltimore's world champs and Dallas' Super Bowl losers also were angling for quarterback insurance and each made a pitch for the No. 1 pick.

The Colts, seeking an eventual successor to Johnny Unitas, 37, and his back-up man, Earl Morrall, 36, reportedly offered Boston tight end John Mackey, among others, for a shot at Plunkett. The Cowboys, somewhat disillusioned with Craig Morton, were rumored to be dangling Bob Hayes and/or Calvin Hill as trade bait.

Overshadowed by the quarterback sweepstakes, but not overlooked by the pro bird dogs as they launched the 17-round marathon that will conclude with the selection of 442 players, were a number of standouts at other positions.

Buffalo, which followed Boston, New Orleans and Houston in the draft order, was high on a pair of fleet pass catchers—J.D. Hill of Arizona State and Elmo Wright of the University of Houston. The same pair were primary targets of the New York Jets, who selected sixth, behind Philadelphia.

Among the pro-size running backs in demand were Ohio State's John Brockington, Kansas' John Riggins, Missouri's Joe Moore and Long Beach State's Leon Burris.

Vernon Holland, a 268-pound tackle from Tennessee State, and Henry Allison, a 255-pound guard from San Diego State, headed a relatively thin crop of outstanding offensive linemen.

Among the defensive line standouts were tackles Richard Harris, 265, of Grambling and Tody Smith, younger brother of Baltimore's Bubba, of Southern California, and ends Jack Youngblood of Florida and Bill Atessis of Texas.

Penn State's Jack Ham and Southern University's Isaiah Robertson are highly rated linebackers while All-American Jack Tatum of Ohio State and Clarence Scott of Kansas State top the defensive secondary list.

Baltimore was the only team with more than one first-round pick, having been awarded Miami's No. 1 by Commissioner Pete Rozelle after he found the Dolphins guilty of tampering with Coach Don Shula.

The first-round order of selection following the No. 6 Jets, was Atlanta, Pittsburgh, Denver, Washington, Chicago, Green Bay, San Diego, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Kansas City, St. Louis, New York Giants, Oakland, Los Angeles, Detroit, Baltimore (from Miami), San Francisco, Minnesota, Dallas and Baltimore.

Kent Edges BG; Coach Unhappy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Nobility complains about a victory, but Kent State basketball Coach Frank Truitt wasn't too pleased with the way his team played Wednesday night.

The Golden Flashes edged Mid-American Conference foe Bowling Green 70-67 after coming from behind several times.

Truitt said his boys were sluggish. And he knows they will have to perk up if they want to beat defending league champion Ohio University in a crucial clash Saturday.

But Truitt was pleased with the second half performances of guards Ruben Vance and Bob McEvoy. They scored 12 and 10 points, respectively, in the second period to aid Kent's cause.

And Truitt's decision to switch from a man-to-man defense in the first half to a one after intermission was a vital factor in the outcome. It held Bowling Green's Jim Connolly to just two points after the 6-foot-7 senior center had netted 14 in the first period.

The win upped Kent State's MAC record to 2-2 and put the Golden Flashes in a three-way tie with Ohio University and Toledo for second place in the league standings.

The Falcons, paced by Dallynn Badenhop's 17 points, now are 1-3 in the MAC.

Playing outside the conference, Toledo came back from a two-point halftime deficit to defeat Butler 77-67. Steve Shay led the winners with 20 points.

Findlay survived a rugged challenge by Rio Grande to record a 95-92 win. The Oilers were led by Ken Burge with 21 points and Marty Arlt with 20, but Rio Grande's Ron Lambert was the game's high scorer with 30 points.

Capital, paced by Don Kallb with 19 points, remained unbeaten in the Ohio Conference by trimming Wittenberg 74-72. Capital now is 7-0 in its quest for a second straight league title. Larry Baker of Wittenberg (4-2) netted a game-high 24 points.

Elsewhere, Ohio Dominican slipped by Marietta 79-78 in overtime; Akron breezed to its ninth straight win by downing Hiram 94-77; Earlham, Ind., beat Ohio Northern 96-90; Wilmington trounced Wright State 116-89; Mount Union defeated John Carroll 97-96, and Bluffton edged Heidelberg 72-71 on a jump shot by Brian Garver with 15 seconds left to play.

Alcindor Leads Milwaukee Over Boston Celtics 132-129

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
San Francisco trounced Detroit 129-112 and Chicago turned back San Diego 111-106.

In tying his NBA single-game high, Alcindor hit 22 of 31 field goal attempts, the last one with 16 seconds left giving the Bucks a winning 130-129 edge. Jo Jo White led Boston with 53 points.

Reed, suffering from tendonitis in a knee, scored only 12 points but he blocked off the middle against Atlanta's drive and grabbed some key rebounds as the Knicks moved to their fourth straight victory.

Walt Frazier scored 26 points and Dave DeBusschere 25 for the Knicks. Walt Hazzard led Atlanta with 26.

Green, moved to center after Lacey sprained an ankle early in the game, connected on 14-of-20 field goal attempts and grabbed 21 rebounds as Cincinnati snapped Baltimore's winning streak at three games. Jack Marin led Baltimore with 26 points.

In the only other NEA action, they play the pivot and Lew Alcindor, Willis Reed, Johnny Green and Walt Wesley were certainly pivotal figures in their clubs' National Basketball Association victories.

Alcindor dropped in 53 points, including the winning field goal, Wednesday night as the Milwaukee Bucks nipped the Boston Celtics 132-129.

Reed, who sat out the first half while New York built and squandered a 21-point lead, sparked the Knicks to a 116-107 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Green, who became a center because of an injury to Sam Lacey, poured in 35 points in Cincinnati's 115-113 squeaker over the Baltimore Bullets.

Wesley came off the bench and sparked the Cleveland Cavaliers to their second straight victory, 118-104 over the Portland Trailblazers.

In the only other NEA action,

RUN FOR THE MONEY, and it sure was, for this is Bobby Thomson, the Cinderella hero of the New York Giants after hitting a three-run homer in the last of the ninth of the final game of a three-game playoff set with Brooklyn in 1951 to give the Giants the pennant. The Giants had trailed Brooklyn by 1 1/2 games in August. The date above was October 3, at the Polo Grounds and the Giants went into the last half of the ninth trailing the Dodgers, 4 to 1. Al Dark opened with an infield single, Don Mueller singled, sending Dark to third. Monte Irvin popped out, Whitey Lockman doubled to score Dark, send Mueller to third. The Dodgers replaced Don Newcombe with Ralph Branca and on his second pitch Thomson hit the ball into the left field stands. Giants then lost the Series to the Yanks.

Hospital Board Surveys Berger's Progression

A "state of Berger Hospital" report was presented to the Board of Governors Wednesday evening. Steady increases were noted in the hospital's business and, in some cases, a tremendous growth in individual areas was indicated. Presenting the annual account comparison from 1963 to the past year, Harry Clifton noted that laboratory business had doubled over the eight year period, average income has risen from $1.55 per hour to $2.45 and emergency room service has demonstrated three and one half times the business just last year over figures reported in 1964.

Board president Mayor Richard Gerhardt urged members to pick up earlier proposals they had made for long range planning for Berger Hospital. Administrator John Reid was authorized to send a letter showing the board's intent to expand present facilities and request consideration for federal funds. The process of receiving approval on the matching fund building program was termed long and involved and would allow the board several years before actual work must be started on any project.

The mayor also recommended that some action be taken to stimulate new doctors to take up practice in our community. A joint committee of medical staff members and board representatives was recommended to develop a plan of action for the community.

IN his personal report to the Board of Governors, the administrator asked permission to sign a contract with the Emergency Room Medical Assn. with the approval of the board's attorney. The 90-day trial period has ended and Reid recommended action be taken as soon as possible.

He noted that the ERMA system has increased hospital business, though it still operates at a loss as far as the payout for doctors' salaries and emergency room charges are concerned.

Despite the loss, Reid urged board continuation of the program as "doing the right thing with regards to service to the community." He expects summer activities in the emergency room to erase all previous losses.

Dr. F. W. Anderson took the floor to praise the ERMA group coverage at Berger, claiming it the "biggest advance in 15 years made in this town." He expressed the idea that local doctors are very pleased with the emergency room service and now have the feeling that somebody cares about them. A great burden of responsibility has been lifted from local physicians' shoulders.

Dr. Carlos Alvarez repeated Anderson's favorable comments and noted that the medical staff wholeheartedly supports the emergency room program, realizing the benefits to patients who now may receive immediate treatment by qualified and skilled physicians.

Reid also reported that the hospital has just undergone a Medicare inspection which it passed, even receiving praise in certain areas from the examiners. A letter was received from the Family Planning Clinic urging the board to be studying ways of expanding present facilities. The clinic, which has been using hospital facilities since May 1967, has experienced a tremendous growth over the three original patients of their initial year, adding 60 to 70 new patients annually and having a visiting patient quota of 320 additional persons. From a medical staff of one, the Family Planning unit now has five doctors who rotate their services at the monthly clinic sessions.

Present at the meeting last night were Mayor Gerhardt, Reid, Assistant Administrator John Barnes, Mrs. Judy Bennington, Bob Huffer, Dr. Robert Phillips, Howard Koch, Dr. Anderson and Dr. Alvarez.

U.S. Hopes ...

place, and nine Vietnamese civilians were reported killed and 22 wounded.

The incidents occurred during the four-day cease-fire declared by the Viet Cong for the lunar new year. It runs until 1 a.m. Saturday Saigon time.

In Cambodia, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops harassed four government outposts to the west, southwest and southeast of Phnom Penh, but a spokesman said there were no allied casualties or damage.

There was no report on the progress of a drive launched Tuesday by up to 8,000 Cambodian troops to break up North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop concentrations west and north-west of Phnom Penh. But military sources in Phnom Penh said enemy units were moving in a generally northward direction away from the area surrounding around the city.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's deposed chief of state, claimed in an interview published in India today that his forces have "liberated" two thirds of Cambodia and installed a government loyal to him. But Sihanouk, now an exile in Peking, said bombing of the Ho Chi Minh trail by U.S. B52s makes it impossible for him to travel back to Cambodia and "enemy airplanes make it impossible for me to remain in the liberated zone."

OAS Supports

cil ignored Jova's appeals and hemispheric foreign ministers will take up the issue Saturday. The ministers already are gathered here for a discussion on ways to combat terrorism.

U.S. sources, explaining the unanimous defeat of the American position, said there was no precedent in hemispheric history for rejecting a call by a member state for a special meeting.

The OAS is unable to force the U.S. to lift the sanctions, which banned military sales to Ecuador for 12 months. But Ecuadorian foreign minister Jose Maria Ponce Yepes said he hopes a censure of the U.S. action will create sufficient pressure to prompt a backdown.

Open Penalty Phase Of Tate Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The penalty trial of Charles Manson and three women followers convicted in the Sharon Tate murders starts today with a black musician reportedly ready to testify that Manson shot him with a gun similar to one used in the killings.

Bernard Crowe, 28, of Hollywood has said he has a bullet lodged in his back from the alleged shooting incident at his apartment on Aug. 1, 1969, eight days before the Tate killings.

A witness at the Tate trial said he went to the Crowe apartment with Manson and saw him enter carrying a long barreled revolver.

Crowe was the first scheduled witness of 10 the prosecution said it would call in trying to persuade the jury to sentence the four defendants to death in the gas chamber.

They were convicted Monday of murder-conspiracy in the slayings of Miss Tate and six others.

Chief defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald is to present a motion alleging that the death penalty and the penalty trial required by California law are unconstitutional. He will ask that the defendants automatically be sentenced to life imprisonment.

Fitzgerald said Wednesday the penalty trial rules offered the jury no guidelines upon which to base their crucial decision between life and death.

In his motion, Fitzgerald said, "If a civilized society cannot say why one man should be executed and another not, it does not rationally, logically, take a life. Indeed, it grossly denies due process of law in inflicting death upon the basis of a trial that is capricious, discriminatory and guess-infested." He also alleged the death penalty is cruel and unusual punishment, which is barred by the U.S. Constitution.

Fitzgerald said he did not expect his client, Patricia Krenwinkel, 23, to take the stand during the penalty phase. Nor was Leslie Van Houten, 21, expected to testify.

However, he said, Manson, 36, and Susan Atkins, 22, planned to speak before the jury. Manson, he said, would probably deliver a rambling "lecture" much like the one he gave when he testified outside the jury's presence during the trial.

Daye Shinn, representing Miss Atkins, whose alleged confession led to the indictments in the case, said she would take the stand to deny that she admitted stabbing Miss Tate.

Shinn said he believed Miss Atkins would have a better chance at life imprisonment, rather than death, if the jurors were persuaded that she didn't do the actual stabbing.

A witness at the trial said Miss Atkins bragged of stabbing the actress repeatedly, then tasting her blood. However, Shinn said Miss Atkins told a grand jury in the case that she held Miss Tate while another person stabbed her.

Report Army Intelligence Still Gathers Civilian Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has suspended orders to purge its Investigative Records Repository of reports on civilians not connected with the military and is continuing to feed the mammoth file with raw FBI data.

The Army has been under congressional attack for its domestic intelligence operations, and orders issued Dec. 15 by its adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Kenneth G. Wickham, have been recently interpreted to mean the military is ending most of its watch on civilians.

But the general superceded that order with a private directive this month to the commander of the Army Intelligence headquarters at Ft. Holabird, Md., where most of the records are kept.

The first order required a purge of all Army files of information on civilians not affiliated with the Defense Department and also prohibited storage of such FBI reports.

However, the second order temporarily exempts the Investigative Records Repository (USAIRR) at Ft. Holabird "because further study is needed to determine the impact of these two requirements."

Asked for comment, Army spokesmen said they were unaware of the second directive and could not immediately respond.

Even without the superceding order, non-military sources point out possible loopholes in the Dec. 15 directive which they say leave the Army with broad authority for continuing its domestic surveillance.

This order specifically allowed collection of information on such things as:

—Attempts to subvert loyalty, discipline or morale by encouraging disobedience, or disruption of military activities.

—And unauthorized demonstrations on or adjacent to military installations which are likely to interfere with military activities.

Taft Offers Senate Proposal To Curb Nixon's Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, offered a Senate resolution Wednesday to curb President Nixon's power to send combat troops overseas without consulting Congress.

Taft's resolution would forbid the President to take any such unilateral action except when U.S. forces already deployed are under attack or when there is a clear need for the nation to exercise its right of self-defense.

Earlier in the day, in a joint press conference, Taft and fellow Ohio Republican Sen. William B. Saxbe expressed alarm over American involvement in Cambodia.

Saxbe termed the landing of 15 to 20 Americans in Phnom Penh airport an episode appropriate to a Wild West show.

He referred to the disclosure Tuesday that a group of Americans in civilian dress had landed in Phnom Penh to retrieve damaged helicopters.

"That is not good," Saxbe declared. "Who are they trying to fool?"

"This is some military commander's idea of being clever, coming in there with civilian clothes and sidearms strapped on like some Wild West show." Saxbe said any such further ventures "must be decided by the White House, not military commanders."

Taft and Saxbe said they intend to work in tandem over most issues. Both said revenue sharing and welfare reform were high on their list of priorities.

Noting there is a "real crisis in the financing of state and local governments," Taft said no-strings-attached federal monies should be earmarked for states "right off the top, before we even consider the rest of the budgeting process."

Saxbe agreed, but expressed the reservation that new measures might be necessary "before we have anything to share under the administration proposal."

Taft and Saxbe said they expect to decide soon upon an appointee to a new federal judgeship in Columbus.

Rights Violation Dismissal Sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—U.S. District Court was asked Wednesday to dismiss a civil rights violation charge against Columbus policeman Robert A. Morgan.

Morgan was indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of inflicting "summary punishment" on Charles James Cook Jr. by fatally shooting the 18-year-old burglary suspect on Jan. 2, 1970, in the basement of a Columbus home.

communities from Ohio to Vermont, and business slowed to a minimum in many others.

Snows ranging up to 2 feet deep and winds of 25 to 40 miles an hour, forced most schools in northern and central Vermont to close.

Travel warnings remained in effect overnight from northeastern Ohio through New Hampshire. Gale warnings flew on all the Great Lakes and along the Eastern Seaboard from Maine to North Carolina.

In contrast to the bitter winter weather in much of the eastern half of the nation, record late-January heat in Southern California brought thousands to the beaches. The temperature soared to 86 in downtown Los Angeles to give the city its warmest Jan. 27 since 1938.

An end to weeklong rains in the Pacific Northwest and an influx of cooler weather eased for the time being the threat of severe flooding in some western Washington areas.

Army Engineers warned, however, that a crest on the Chehalis River could cause serious flooding in the coastal city of Aberdeen if it met an expected high tide of 10.6 feet today.

The river, like many in the region, had been filled by runoff from seasonal rains and unusually heavy snow melting in the Cascades.

Two Councilmen File Petitions

Petitions were filed with the Pickaway County Board of Elections for city office posts by Gladden Troutman, 155 E. Union St. and Keith D. Wagner, 122 Seyfert Ave.

Troutman, a Democrat, is seeking election to the council seat to which he was appointed July, 1970 filling the unexpired term of the late fourth ward Council member Boyd Horn.

Democrat incumbent Keith Wagner will be a candidate for re-election as city councilman-at-large.

Put Freeze On Projects

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A freeze on proposed stream channeling projects has been ordered until the Ohio Water Commission can determine their effects on the environment.

The order by Natural Resources Director William B. Nye follows a Dec. 14 public hearing in Findlay at which considerable opposition to the stream channel programs was voiced.

The freeze directly affects two projects, the south fork of the Licking River in Licking County and Rush Creek in Fairfield, Perry and Hocking counties.

State money involved in planning the two projects totals $31,500, which also will be frozen until the review is completed in late February.

Actual stream channeling is financed by local and federal funds through the Watershed and Flood Protection Act. The state reviews project applications and provides money for preliminary studies.

Hospital Board Surveys Berger's Progression

A "state of Berger Hospital" report was presented to the Board of Governors Wednesday evening. Steady increases were noted in the hospital's business and, in some cases, a tremendous growth in individual areas was indicated.

Presenting the annual account comparison from 1963 to the past year, Harry Clifton noted that laboratory business had doubled over the eight year period, average income has risen from $1.55 per hour to $2.45 and emergency room service has demonstrated three and one half times the business just last year over figures reported in 1964.

Board president Mayor Richard Gerhardt urged members to pick up earlier proposals they had made for long range planning for Berger Hospital. Administrator John Reid was authorized to send a letter showing the board's intent to expand present facilities and request consideration for federal funds. The process of receiving approval on the matching fund building program was termed long and involved and would allow the board several years before actual work must be started on any project.

The mayor also recommended that some action be taken to stimulate new doctors to take up practice in our community. A joint committee of medical staff members and board representatives was recommended to develop a plan of action for the community.

IN his personal report to the Board of Governors, the administrator asked permission to sign a contract with the Emergency Room Medical Assn. with the approval of the board's attorney. The 90-day trial period has ended and Reid recommended action be taken as soon as possible.

He noted that the ERMA system has increased hospital business, though it still operates at a loss as far as the payout for doctors' salaries and emergency room charges are concerned.

Despite the loss, Reid urged board continuation of the program as "doing the right thing with regards to service to the community." He expects summer activities in the emergency room to erase all previous losses.

Dr. F. W. Anderson took the floor to praise the ERMA group coverage at Berger, claiming it the "biggest advance in 15 years made in this town." He expressed the idea that local doctors are very pleased with the emergency room service and now have the feeling that somebody cares about them. A great burden of responsibility has been lifted from local physicians' shoulders.

Dr. Carlos Alvarez repeated Anderson's favorable comments and noted that the medical staff wholeheartedly supports the emergency room program, realizing the benefits to patients who now may receive immediate treatment by qualified and skilled physicians.

Reid also reported that the hospital has just undergone a Medicare inspection which it passed, even receiving praise in certain areas from the examiners.

A letter was received from the Family Planning Clinic urging the board to be studying ways of expanding present facilities. The clinic, which has been using hospital facilities since May 1967, has experienced a tremendous growth over the three original patients of their initial year, adding 60 to 70 new patients annually and having a visiting patient quota of 320 additional persons. From a medical staff of one, the Family Planning unit now has five doctors who rotate their services at the monthly clinic sessions.

Present at the meeting last night were Mayor Gerhardt, Reid, Assistant Administrator John Barnes, Mrs. Judy Bennington, Bob Huffer, Dr. Robert Phillips, Howard Koch, Dr. Anderson and Dr. Alvarez.

place, and nine Vietnamese civilians were reported killed and 22 wounded.

The incidents occurred during the four-day cease-fire declared by the Viet Cong for the lunar new year. It runs until 1 a.m. Saturday Saigon time.

In Cambodia, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops harassed four government outposts to the west, southwest and southeast of Phnom Penh, but a spokesman said there were no allied casualties or damage.

There was no report on the progress of a drive launched Tuesday by up to 8,000 Cambodian troops to break up North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop concentrations west and north-west of Phnom Penh. But military sources in Phnom Penh said enemy units were moving in a generally northward direction away from the area surrounding around the city.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's deposed chief of state, claimed in an interview published in India today that his forces have "liberated" two thirds of Cambodia and installed a government loyal to him. But Sihanouk, now an exile in Peking, said bombing of the Ho Chi Minh trail by U.S. B52s makes it impossible for him to travel back to Cambodia and "enemy airplanes make it impossible for me to remain in the liberated zone."

U.S. sources, explaining the unanimous defeat of the American position, said there was no precedent in hemispheric history for rejecting a call by a member state for a special meeting.

The OAS is unable to force the U.S. to lift the sanctions, which banned military sales to Ecuador for 12 months. But Ecuadorian foreign minister Jose Maria Ponce Yepes said he hopes a censure of the U.S. action will create sufficient pressure to prompt a backdown.

Widespread Environment Rules Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's 1971 plan for protecting the environment will be a multi-headed package emphasizing prevention of ecological crises and giving states major responsibilities in the field, congressional sources say.

In one of the administration's new proposals, noise limits would be placed on everything from construction equipment to power lawn mowers and snowmobiles, the sources say.

Regulations would prohibit scarring of the land, such as by strip mining.

The administration's legislative package and the President's environment message, due on Capitol Hill about Feb. 8, will commit the federal government to greater expenditures in the popular fight against land and water pollution and in creation of more parks in urban areas.

Explaining the more than 20 proposed measures to key congressmen this week, administration spokesmen have been selling the program chiefly as preventive legislation to avoid crises in the future, an observer at one briefing said.

One of the major new responsibilities for state governments would be to come up with specific land-use regulations within the scope of broad federal guidelines.

The President will ask Congress for about $20 million in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, the sources said, to offer the states as grants in developing land-use plans and enforcement procedures.

Private firms, port authorities and local governments—even the federal government—would have to comply with the state land-use policy before they could begin construction projects under this law.

Other administration proposals, sources said, will include:

—Regulations limiting the amount of certain chemicals and other toxic substances in manufacturing processes and in marketable products.

—Limits on sulfur oxide emissions which result when some coal and other fossil fuels are burned. The administration, it explained, wants to place new taxes on fuels with high sulfur content as an incentive for greater use of low sulfur fuel.

—A tax on gasoline containing lead additives as an incentive for motorists to buy non-lead fuel. This was proposed during the last session of Congress but failed.

—Regulations against unlimited ocean dumping of wastes and sewage.
